PROSECUTOR SPRINGS SURPRISE AT TRIAL OF WINTERS IN VERMONT

Woodstock, Vt., Jan. 21.—Preserved in alcohol, the battered head of Miss Cecilia Gullivan, victim of the sleeping porch murder at Windsor, was brought today into court when John C. Winters is on trial for his life.

The gruesome object was in a wooden box that Special Prosecutor Raymond Trainor disclosed was among the many exhibits piled on a table in front of the Judge's bench.

The purpose of this startling so-e- [illegible] on by the State in bringing in the [illegible] head as an exhibit to the jury, is to attempt to prove conclusively that the death weapon was a chisel alleged to have been found hidden in Winters' home.

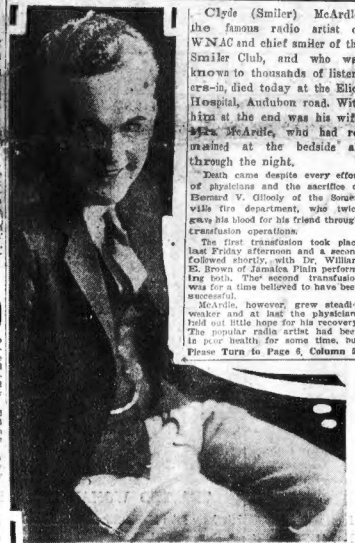
'Smiler' McArdle's Voice Is Stilled



CLYDE McARDLE, ANNOUNCER

Famous radio artist and WNAC announcer, died at Eliot Hospital, Audubon road, after blood transfusion had twice failed to save him.

Clyde (Smiler) McArdle, the famous radio artist of WNAC and chief smiler of the Smiler Club, and who was known to thousands of listeners-in, died today at the Eliot Hospital, Audubon road. With him at the end was his wife, Mrs. McArdle, who had remained at the bedside all through the night.

Death came despite every effort of physicians and the sacrifice of Bernard V. Ciloody of the Somerville fire department, who twice gave his blood for his friend through transfusion operations.

The first transfusion took place last Friday afternoon and a second followed shortly, with Dr. William E. Brown of Jamaica Plain performing both. The second transfusion was for a time believed to have been successful.

McArdle, however, grew steadily weaker and at last the physicians held out little hope for his recovery. The popular radio artist had been in poor health for some time, but

MOVIE STAR SAVES BIG SUM AS FEDERAL MEN REACH BANK TOO LATE

(Copyright by Universal Service)

New York, Jan. 21.—Charlie Chaplin won a race with the government and today he has at least $500,000 that the Federal agents haven't put their hands on.

But Chaplin only saved this $500,000 by a scant 15 minutes. A representative of the screen comedian was waiting at the door of the Bowery and East River National Bank, Broadway and Forty-First street, when that institution opened.

This representative had with him the star's personal check for $500,000, the full amount of the account. As the paying teller threw open his window this check was presented. Half a million dollars in large bills were passed through the wicket and Chaplin's account was marked "closed." With the fortune in his pocket, Chaplin's man left the bank.

Fifteen minutes later two breathless Federal agents arrived. They were some of the squad which the government used in seizing Chaplin's other bank accounts, estimated at $1,500,000 in New York.

They asked to see President Giannini. Ushered into the official's office, they flashed a government ident

HI-JACKERS ESCAPE IN STATE ST. LIQUOR RAID

Two of the biggest liquor raids launched by the Boston police during the seven years of prohibition were staged today.

Six arrests, including one woman, were made and liquor, much of it said by the police to be pre-war whiskey, valued far into the thousands, was seized.

One of the raids, in the heart of the State street financial district, surprised five hi-jackers at work, but all escaped. The other, in the North End, was featured by a flat fight and followed by the gathering of a mob that, for a time, was on the verge of a riot.

Entering their way through a heavy oaken door with sledge-hammers on the third floor of the building at 114 State street, Sergeants Gilman and Petterson of the Milk street sation, not only stepped into a veritable gold mine of pre-war whiskies, high-grade wines and sherry, but interrupted five busy hi-jackers at their work.

The latter, however, recovered from the mutual surprise first and like so many ghosts, faded from the picture in a manner which at the time appeared mysterious.

Later it was discovered that they had fled silently down the fire escape after climbing through a window of the small room adjoining

ACCUSES PHONE CO. OF WIRE TAPPING PLOT

"Wire tapping" of its own lines by the telephone company and ranking of immoral conduct allegations against its active in the telephone [illegible] nion, to force them to accept discharges recently, were charged today by City Councillor Joseph McGrath before an amazed audience in City Hall at the hearing before a City Council committee investigating complaints of wholesale discharges by the company.

While Wm. H. O'Brien, telephone expert of the State Department of Public Utilities was on the stand Councillor McGrath charged the Councillor's own telephone line, Columbia 1914, was tapped for listening in.

Telephone conversations between public men instrumental in investigations of the telephone company are listened in on every day, McGrath charged, and even conversations between officials of the telephone unions are listened to.

"In the offices of a law firm and at the telephone company's headquarters in Milk street are private rooms for listening in on conversations," declared McGrath.

"The Crocker will case was listened in on, and among some of the others were the Pinanski divorce case, the Dartmouth College bootleg scandal and the telephone company robbery.

DELANEY MUST FIGHT MALONEY AT 175 POUNDS

New York, Jan. 21 (A. P.)—The State Athletic Commission today approved the bout between Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, light-heavyweight champion, and Jimmy Maloney of Boston, at Madison Square Garden, February 18.

In approving the match, the commission added the proviso that Delaney must fight at or under his class limit, 175 pounds. Jess McMahon, representing Tex Rickard before the commission, asked that a top price of $20 a seat be sanctioned. The commission deferred action on this request.

The approval of the commission removed the last obstacle to the match, which was the most difficult of arrangement of any of the so-called heavyweight elimination bouts by which it is hoped to establish a definite contender for a match with Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion.

Speculation as to whether the Delaney-Maloney bout would be approved had been voiced, and some doubt as to whether Delaney would be permitted to fight in the heavyweight class without first defending his light-heavyweight crown was expressed.

U.S. SENATORS VOTE FOR MEXICAN ARBITRATION

Washington, Jan. 21.—The resolution submitted by Senator Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate, suggesting arbitration of the oil dispute with Mexico, was approved today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, 13 to 3.

The resolution merely would express the opinion of the Senate and would in no way be binding on the administration.

Secretary Kellogg has disclosed that he is studying the possibilities of arbitration and President Calles of Mexico has accepted in principle that method of adjusting the present difficulties.

Approval of the resolution was voted after some changes in phraseology. Action by the Senate probably will be sought tomorrow.

Senator Reed, Missouri, a Democrat, and Senators McLean and Edge, Republicans, voted against a favorable report on the resolution.

ATTY. SHAW KILLED WIFE, JUDGE REPORTS

Middleboro, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—J. E. Norton Shaw, New Bedford attorney, shot and killed his wife, Helen M. Shaw, at their home in Mattapoisett on November 27, and then committed suicide, Judge Nathan Washburn reported today after an inquest on the deaths.

He based his finding on the fact that Shaw was hopelessly entangled financially and facing a situation damaging to his reputation as a lawyer; that Mrs. Shaw would have been drawn into the matter as endorser of certain notes; that the shotgun used had been tested by an expert and found to be impossible of accidental discharge.

Judge Washburn found that Mr. and Mrs. Shaw were a singularly devoted couple, and there was no lack of harmony between them.

HI-JACKERS ESCAPE POLICE IN STATE ST. RUM RAID

the liquor cache, and, upon reaching the street, vanished in a high-powered automobile. The last of 50 cases of valuable whiskey they had hi-jacked went with them.

A police officer standing in State street, a short distance below No. 114, saw them going, but, thought they were bankers or brokers off on an early morning business mission.

Not a shot was fired as the five hi-jackers sped away over the slippery streets with their prize loot.

Evidences of the hi-jackers' raid still remained in the rooms of what later proved to be a liquor exchange on the third floor of No. 114 State street.

Here padlocks had been ripped off of bins built into the walls and the floor was littered with straw and paper. But what the hi-jackers had taken was but a mere drop in the bucket to what remained and was revealed to the astonished eyes of the police officers.

Cases of real Scotch and rye, fine wines and other choice liquors, all bearing the earmarks of the genuine stuff, were pulled into view. The stock was valued at $10,000 by the raiders.

The contraband was removed as hundreds of commuters were thronging into the district on their way to work. The contraband was taken to City Prison for safe keeping. The owners are being sought.

While the police were busy with the State street raid, the regular headquarters liquor squad, under Captain George W. Patterson and Lieutenant Daniel J. Hines, armed with a search warrant, swooped down upon the tenement house at No. 340 Commercial street, where, after a battle, they arrested a woman and five men, and seized fifteen barrels of wine. The raid attracted a crowd of excited residents of the section.

The raid came at a busy hour of the day and gathered an angry crowd. It was with difficulty that the officers worked their way through the jam of excited residents, who jeered them as they began rolling the barrels of wine onto the trucks that backed up to the door.

Those arrested gave the following names: Mrs. Modesta Pena, 23 years old, of North street; Joaquin Sigura, 29, of Commercial street; Joseph Lorenzo, 30, of Hanover street, and Jacinto Maietto, 28, of Commercial street. All were charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale. The charge of manufacturing liquor was placed against German Samoya, 24, of Commercial street, and Samuel Montefisco, 60, of North street.

The raid, it is understood, is a part of the Boston police drive to dry up the cases that, they declare, exist in some sections of the city.

on Chaplin's account. Glanini broke the news to them.

TOLD BAD NEWS.

A representative of the internal revenue service indicated later that some action may be taken against the bank, taking the stand that the bank officials knew of the impending lien. This was denied by President Glanini who declined to discuss a special meeting of the board of directors of the bank called hurriedly yesterday afternoon. Glanini said:

"The bank did only what it would do with any other account. Chaplin had the money on deposit. He asked to withdraw it. We could not do otherwise than honor the check.

At that time we had not been informed that the government was planning to place a lien against the account and, even though we had knowledge of such action to be brought, we could not stop payment until the legal order actually was in our hands."

Other banks where the government agents were more successful could not be learned, although it was known that the Guarantee Trust Company and the Harriman National Bank were on the list.

The government action was to collector of internal revenue in this district. After placing the liens at the various banks, he filed them in the United States District Court late yesterday afternoon. They are similar to the liens filed in San Francisco a few days ago and are based on alleged unpaid income tax assessments with penalties and interest.

The government has been working on the local accounts of Chaplin since last Wednesday.

While the government today continued its search for more of the comedian's fortune to tie up with liens, Chaplin planned to leave for California within a week to fight his wife's suit.

Nathan Burkam, Chaplin's attorney, at whose home here he is recovering from a nervous breakdown, said the comedian is "doing fine" and can now spend most of the day out of bed.

Uncle Sam Balks Lita in Her Pleas for Alimony

Washington, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—Uncle Sam turned a deaf ear today to the plea of Lita Grey Chaplin that he do the gallant thing for a lady and allow her to collect $14,400 from Charley before the matter of the film star's income tax arrears are adjusted.

"Sorry, but nothing doing," was the attitude of the government, as expressed by Deputy Commissioner of Internal Revenue Charles R. Nash.

The government has filed claims against Chaplin's estate totaling nearly $1,000,000 alleged to be due in neglected income taxes.

Under the law, these claims must be threshed out and adjudicated before any other claims can be paid. The government comes first, officials said, and there will be no abrogation of the rule.

SOCIETY PET IS SPARED JAIL IN LINGERIE ROW

It came buzzing over the wires from Los Angeles today that the thirty-day suspended sentence and the $50 fine imposed on Louisa Fletcher, North Shore runaway "Shebo" and society girl, were assessed for blacking the eye of Lady Diana Bailhurst.

And a trunkful of flapper flipperies and flimsies in sheer textures and flesh and peach hues started the hostilities that landed Louisa, her brother, Stoughton Fletcher III, and her girl chum, Ruth Miles.

Ownership of the trunkful of exquisites was still in doubt today, according to the dispatches, no one outside the participants in the pitched battle knowing really whether they are the property of Louisa, of Ruth or of Lady Diana herself.

NO DOUBT ABOUT EYE

There was no disputing ownership of the black eye, however, for it was worn, rampant, just under the delicately lady's [illegible]cked eyebrow.

It developed today also that "Shebo's" wealthy banker father, Stoughton Fletcher, 2d, of Indianapolis, was the man wanted.

The son heard of the surrender, however, and himself surrendered, clearing his dad, who had attempted to shield him. Fletcher, the son, is out on bail today after pleading guilty to swiping the trunkful of feminine finery from Lady Diana's apartment, the lady's elevator name being Miss Virginia G. Hurst.

And so stands Louisa in the news today, at the end of her third esca-

FIND 'TARZAN' GIRL GUILTY IN DOPE CASE

"Tarzan," the beautiful and blonde Bahnghild Wendt Wriedt, in court several days ago was in again today with Arthur W. Curtis, Boylston street photographer, and found guilty of possessing morphine and hypodermic needles.

It was not discovered until today that the beautiful Bahnghild was in reality the girl Evelyn Stanfield, known in Boston bohemian and court circles as "Tarzan."

What "Tarzan's" really and truly name is—even if any she has given—no one has been able to learn thus far in her career, which began back four years ago and which has included all sorts of court charges and general excitement.

When arrested several days ago she declared she was the daughter of a Danish nobleman.

On previous arrests she has said variously that she was originally from Berlin, N. H., where she was born; that she came to America a motherless child, from Denmark, when five years old; that she is the daughter of a mining expert with offices in Boston—and other designations.

In court today, Sergeant Nixon and Special Officers Dalton and Brick of the Lagrange street station testified to finding the narcotic and implements in Curtis' studio, where Curtis and "Tarzan" were arrested, but admitted that part of the morphine had been prescribed by a physician.

Judge Parmenter, after finding them guilty, continued the cases to next Thursday.

'CHIN' POISON VICTIM

JESSE FEINBERG AND PET

Chow dog, owned by a little Mayflower court boy in Brookline, died at the hands of the Coolidge Corner poisoner.

FOUR DOGS ARE POISONED IN BROOKLINE

A dog poisoner is at work in the Coolidge Corner section of Brookline. At least four animals have passed on to their happy hunting ground in this manner this week and it is feared the number is larger.

A reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the offender has been offered by the owners of one of the dogs, William A. McKenney of 134 Babcock street, Brookline bank president, who lost his Boston terrier, Dandy, on Tuesday.

The animal was in convulsions when it died on the way to the Angell Memorial hospital from strychnine.

The police are trying to locate the culprit.

Three of the dead animals were owned by Babcock street residents, and one of them, a German police dog, the property of George S. Graham of Babcock street, was valued by the owner at $1,000. The nature of the death was suspicious, and to confirm his opinion Mr. Graham is having an autopsy made on the dog today.

Owners of dogs in the vicinity are alarmed and are keeping them under careful guard.

An Irish terrier named Jerry, the pet of H. D. Foss of Babcock street, was found dying in convulsions in the rear of a nearby apartment, and strychnine was given as the cause.

A chow belonging to Jesse Feinberg of Mayflower court is another victim.

HOW FAR ARE YOU WALKING?

The average housekeeper trudges in her daily toil a distance from Boston to San Francisco every year.

The average business man stens would equal eight round trips to New York from Boston annually.

Many a hospital interne covers an average of 140 miles weekly in his visits from bed to bed, up stairs and down.

These are some of an interesting table of walking statistics compiled with the aid of a tested pedometer by Dr. Joseph Lelyveld, podiatrist, chief of the Boston Foot Clinic at No. 415 Newbury street.

Dr. Lelyveld has been making a survey of personal locomotion for several months. He has attached his instrument to scores of men and women in different occupations and from the pedometer readings, has obtained the following averages:

We all do a surprising lot of walking, Dr. Lelyveld has found, for he has computed the average steps of the average person as 13,098 each day. As the average walker takes 2,444 steps to the mile, his daily total reaches more than seven miles. In each mile each foot makes more than 650,000 muscle movements, the doctor's table further explains.

Eighteen holes of average golf requires a mileage of from eight to nine miles, Dr. Lelyveld learned from tests on several golfers.

Christmas shopping exacted an average of 11 miles, while an ordinary shopping expedition covers a mileage of eight and a third.

Boys at play cover a mileage greater than girls, the ratio being 11 to 13.

The average store girl walks eight miles at work, a mail carrier 22 miles, a stenographer seven miles, a store manager six miles and a waiter or waitress a mile an hour.

A conductor on a New York express covers nine miles in collecting tickets, seven miles between Boston and Chicago and only five miles between Boston and Cleveland.

MORE RAIN AND FOG FOR HUB

Winter will continue for 36 hours longer to heal its early January storm scars with softening rains.

According to the prediction of the local weather man, drizzly, foggy skies will envelop Greater Boston through today and tomorrow to reenforce the current thaw effected by above-freezing temperatures.

The only indication of a threatening cold wave on the weather map today was centered in Montana and the Dakotas, where the mercury slumped to 10 to 28 below zero, respectively, but the weather sharp here believes that the frigid fog will be diverted southwards in its march across the continent.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Cloudy, probably with some light rain tonight and Saturday; not much change in temperature; moderate easterly winds.

A Boston man and woman, together with 48 other American refugees, arrived at Manila today aboard the U. S. destroyer Pillsbury, a flight from Foochow, China, where foreigners have been threatened and churches looted.

With decks cleared for action, because of threats to fire on escaping refugees, the Pillsbury steamed down the Min River, near the scene of the disturbances, but there was no attempt to molest the vessel and the refugees arrived at the Philippine port without mishap.

The Boston couple were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Blakney. Others aboard were Mrs. Ernest N. Price and four children, of Titusville, Pa., and Mrs. Ralph A. Ward and daughter of New York City.

The American destroyer Parrott has gone from Shanghai to Foochow, but word of her arrival at Foochow has not been received by the Navy Department at Washington.

Except for three men, the refugees carried to safety in Manila were women and children, mostly families of wealthy residents of the Chinese city. The threats to fire on them, which were not fulfilled, were made by Nationalist soldiers.

First U. S. Casualty in Occupation of Nicaragua

Bluefields, Nicaragua, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—The first American casualty of the American occupation in Nicaragua was that of Private Charles S. Cochensperger of the 77th Company, 2nd Battalion, U. S. M. C. The body has been buried in the Rama cemetery.

The Bluefields dispatch, which may or may not have been subjected to censorship, failed to state how the American marine met his death, merely stating that the "body was recovered and buried."

American Envoy Rushes Back to Post in Pekin

Pekin, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—John MacMurray, American Minister to China, who has started for a vacation in the United States, has been ordered to return to his post in Pekin because of the serious turn of events.

Secretary Kellogg has instructed Minister MacMurray, who planned to sail from Kobe next week, that his presence is needed in Pekin.

The American evacuation of Pekin is proceeding rapidly. More than 100 Americans have now evacuated and the consulate states that all Americans will be out of the province within a fortnight.

SENATORS VOTE ARBITRATION WITH MEXICO

Arkansas, Walsh of Montana; and Harrison, Democrats; and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota.

While the committee was meeting, two more resolutions dealing with the administration's Latin-American policy were referred to it from the Senate floor.

One by Senator Frazier, Republican, North Dakota, would request President Coolidge not to intervene in Mexico during the Summer recess of Congress, but to call a special session if he thought action necessary.

TO PROBE "PROPAGANDA."

The other, by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, would provide for a committee investigation of published reports that the State Department had sought to spread propaganda damaging to friendly relations between the United States and Mexico.

The changes made by the committee in the arbitration resolution were described by its author, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, as designed to make clear that any agreement to arbitrate would "contemplate the protection of the rights of American citizens pending arbitration; the application of the principles of international law, and arrangements for the carrying out of the award when made."

11 HUB CALLS TO ENGLAND

At least eleven telephone conversations will be held between Boston and London, Eng., tomorrow, when the new oceanic air line is made available to the public, according to "Tom" Feeney, telephone company official.

The requests came from all over New England, and each time one was entered, the sum of $75 accrued automatically to the phone company —barring cancellations—that being the minimum charge for three minutes.

Judge Loyed E. Chamberlain of the Brockton Rotary Club will tell the president of the London Rotary Club that the sixth object of Rotary is international peace. The Brockton Rotarians are prepared to make the occasion one for a gala time.

Mayor Arthur E. Moreau of Manchester, N. H., may be one of the first persons to talk with England when the new service opens.

prohibition, were caught in that way, by fate.

CATS NEAR Bakersfield, California, can sympathize with Midas, who changed into gold everything he touched, and nearly starved. California's cats were cheered, then horrified, by rolling waves of migrating mice. First they ate some; then ran from them in horror. Too much, even mice, is too much.

POISONED GRAIN may do what cats couldn't do. Once when field mice threatened the alfalfa crop farther North, after owls, coyotes and other animal had eaten all they could hold, sea gulls came flying far inland, in huge flocks, scooped up the mice and ended the plague. Nature keeps things balanced. Ten shad in ten years would fill the ocean with their descendants. And one rabbit's house in ten years would produce young enough to outweigh the earth, if all the young ones lived.

JOSEPH D. BANNON, New York philosopher, whose business is circulating newspapers, remarked "there is no use writing editorials at the poor any more. There are none of these people left. They all have automobiles."

That isn't literally true, unfortunately, although it will be true some day. But there has been improvement.

THE WIDOW and seventeen-year-old daughter of Tony Pagliughi, organ grinder killed by an automobile truck, asks $75,000 damages. They swear that his grinding organ, which always played cheerful tunes, earned $150 a week. That's almost as much as Uncle Sam pays a Congressman or Senator.

MR. DODD, president of the National Association of Book Publishers, says Americans will buy, ten years hence, twice as many books as are bought today. That's good news, if the right books are bought. What book printers need is more and better advertising and a low-selling cost. How many automobiles would be sold if a car costing $600 in the factory cost $1,000 on delivery? That's how it is with books.

MADRID REPORTS that twenty children were slaughtered when a Chinese orphans' home and Spanish churches at Foochow were attacked by Chinese students. Ire against Christians in China has been increased by circulation of stories telling how Christians gouge out the eyes of Chinese babies.

That sort of lie stimulates murder. It is also the sort that was printed and told about the Germans in the big war not so long ago to stimulate "patriotism."

GERMAN CHEMISTS still lead the world to the sorrow of American manufacturers of wood alcohol. The President last November increased the tax on wood alcohol to protect manufacturers. But Germany manufactures synthetically "menthanol," which does all that wood alcohol will do. Since the President increased the tariff they have sent in 500,000 gallons. America must compete or quit.

BECAUSE MEN talked across the Atlantic at $25 a minute, the price of Telephone stock immediately went up. Now stock in cables under the oceans drops, stockholders fearing telephone competition. They need not. New things rarely ruin old so suddenly.

There is greater tonnage of sailing vessels on the water today than when the first steamship was built.

IT'S GOOD to have ships at sea, if, like Great Britain, you have an empire. Yesterday the British Admiralty took the ocean liner Megantic from the White Star Line to be fitted for transporting troops to China. Britain will not drop her Chinese rights and future profits without a struggle.

Here, we hope to have no further use for ships carrying American soldiers across the ocean. But we ought to have a few ships.

MR. FOKKER, who knows how to build flying machines, is now building a big one that will, on one supply of fuel, fly from California to Hawaii and 1,400 miles farther. That should interest the Navy Department. It might hire Mr. Fokker

Newton Clubwomen Win Tax Fight in Supreme Court

The Newton Centre Woman's Club, Inc., is a literary, benevolent and charitable organization and as such is exempt from taxation.

The full bench of the Supreme Court so decided today in overruling exceptions of the City of Newton to a Superior Court decree ordering Newton to abate a $1,522.89 tax assessed on real and personal property of the club.

SAYS PHONE CO. TAPPED WIRES ON GIRLS

hotel for the purpose of listening in on conversations carried on between union officials and prominent city officials who had in hand the investigation of the company.

"I know of cases where stories were circulated about girls who were leaders in the telephone girls' union, and these girls, in order to avoid the publicity, took discharges without a fight when they were entirely innocent.

"When a close friend of mine warned me to be careful when talking over my telephone because it was 'up,' I was quite anxious to know what 'up' meant. Investigation disclosed to me that 'up' was another term for listening in."

For the purpose of being confronted with some of McGrath's charges, the head of the claim department of the law firm McGrath named had been asked to attend the hearing today, but when his name was called there was no response.

SENATE SEAT-BUYING OVER, SAYS WALSH

Camden, N. J., Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—"The Senate's refusal to seat Frank L. Smith of Illinois is a flat declaration that vote buying for a senatorial seat has ended," United States Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, declared here in an address before the Camden Real Estate Board.

"The Senate has a right to review the qualifications of a Senator," Walsh declared, "because he not only represents his own State, but makes laws for forty-seven other States. Smith's offence was branded by Senator Walsh as "second only to treason."

"Once you corrupt the ballot box or electorate you undermine the institutions of government," he asserted. "For the first time in history, the Senate has in its files evidence tending to show such an excessive use of money and such corrupt practices in obtaining election that the case was removed from the usual type.

"They couldn't allow a man to take an oath of office and sit in the jury which would determine his own fitness to sit there."

Smith Sees Hope for Senate Seat Fading

Washington, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—With the doors of the Senate closed in his face and barred from his oath of office, Senator-designate Frank L. Smith, of Illinois, today faced a hopeless task of proving to a hostile jury his right to a senatorial seat on the appointment given him by Governor Len Small.

As the Senate has twice refused to let Smith enter its portals, even temporarily, there appeared small likelihood of him ever becoming an actual Senator. The votes against Smith were both 48 to 32, a Democratic-insurgent coalition joining hands to bar him.

Leaders of the coalition hailed the verdict as an announcement by the Senate that it will not admit to its membership any Senatorial candidate tainted with huge expenditures.

As such, they predicted, the verdict virtually bars both Smith and Senator-elect William S. Vare, of Pennsylvania from any hope of entering the Senate in the next Congress.

Duke Estate Ordered to Pay Power Co. $1,000,000 Debt

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—The Court of Chancery here has decreed, it was learned today, that losses amounting to $1,032,397.73 incurred by the late James B. Duke, millionaire tobacco man, in experimentation with a new process of manufacturing fertilizer, must be met by his estate. His widow, Mrs. Nanaline H. Duke, and the executors of the $92,000,000 estate opposed the payment.

The sum is to be paid to the Southern Power Co. of Charlotte, N. C., in which Mr. Duke held 70 per cent. of the stock, for amounts paid out and amounts due power and light to the Piedmont Electro-Chemical Company of Charlotte, organized by Duke to manufacture the fertilizer.

Two Guilty of Election Fraud

EAST INDIAN CREW HELD FOR BRITISH TRIAL

Assault and battery charges against East Indian seamen on the British vessel City of Barado, were dismissed in South Boston Court today by Judge Day because of lack of evidence. James McFadden, third engineer of he ship, who the men were accused of assaulting, is in Chelsea Marine Hospital with a fracture of the skull.

The men were turned over to the captain of the ship, John McMillan, and they will be tried by English authorities.

BANKER'S 'GUEST' IS HELD ON SWINDLING CHARGE

New Britain, Conn., Jan. 27 (A.P.).—"Benjamin Sachs, of San Francisco," who had spent several days here looking for a site for a rubber factory, was a guest of a bank president at a Rotary club meeting yesterday and was introduced at the New Britain club. Today Aaron Aaronson alias Sachs, 32, is under arrest on a charge of swindling a Newport News, Va., bank out of $5,000.

Aaronson was entertained at the New Britain clubs by John C. Loomis, president of the Commercial Trust Company, in order to allay Aaronson's suspicion while he telegraphed San Francisco for information.

The answer he received advised Aaronson's arrest.

HEARING MONDAY ON COYNE'S BEEF CHARGES

Charges by Representative Francis X. Coyne of Boston that bad beef has been served to inmates of State institutions, the proofs of which he refused to disclose to the Governor's Council unless members of the press were present, will be given an airing Monday before the committee on rules.

GIRL ATTACKED, SAYS WINTERS PROSECUTOR

clothing, of a chisel found hidden in Winters' home, of blood stains on the bedding and on Winters, and of torn clothes that seemed to show Winters climbed a barbed wire fence about Miss Gullivan's home.

Spectators, among whom sat the defendant's mother, gasped as the prosecutor bluntly brushed aside robbery and revenge as motives for the crime.

Pale and serious, Winters sat drinking in every word. Not even a whisper to his lawyers escaped his lips.

"The State will reconstruct the scene here just as it was when the murder was discovered," said Tranor.

"The State will show that there were valuables on the dining room table, but that the intruder passed them by. Robbery was not the motive. We will present two weapons that could have made the deadly death wounds.

LINKS IN STATE CHAIN.

"The State will show where the defendant was on Saturday night, November 6, from 4:30 until midnight; what he said he wanted to do and what his conduct was. Then it will be shown that Winters was in the north end of Windsor, where Miss Gullivan lived.

"The State will place him two or three times within a short distance of the home of Miss Tottie Evarts and then will show that about ten minutes of 3 in the morning of Sunday, November 7, he was in Miss Evarts' home. The State will show what his motives were in being there and what his purpose was.

"The State will introduce evidence to show when Winters arrived home and the approximate hour at which Miss Gullivan was killed.

"We will show you what his condition was and what he had been drinking the night before the murder. All these links together point to the person who did this most brutal murder and they all point conclusively to John C. Winters. That's all."

THREE WITNESSES HEARD.

When Trainor finished Defense Attorney Herbert G. Tupper asked that all government witnesses be excluded from the court room except the one actually on the witness stand. This was granted by Judge Thompson.

It was considered a damaging blow to the government that State Detective Edward C. Brown was excluded with the other prosecution witnesses, as he was due to sit beside the prosecutors and assist them in the questioning of witnesses whom he previously examined during the murder investigation.

Police Chief Michael Degnon of Windsor, where the murder of Miss Gullivan, a Whitman, Mass., girl, occurred on November 7, was the first witness and quickly identified a heap of State exhibits of which he has had charge.

STATE OPENS DRIVE FOR REAL CURE OF CANCER

The State health department has started an intensive educational campaign for the early and proper treatment of cancer.

Speakers during the next two months will address associations of visiting nurses in various parts of the State. It is through these nurses that the health authorities hope to find and treat cancer in its early stages and to discredit numerous "fake" cures for the disease.

Physician Advises Women to Keep Weight Down

Dr. William H. Breed, well-known Back Bay physician, gave the following advice to a group of women at the Boston Women's City Club, during a talk on health:

"If you want to keep your weight down do not eat more than your body needs for its activity. There is no anti-fat remedy, so don't try any samples offered by quacks. You add weight when you eat more than your body can take care of. So check your eating. Memorize this and practice it and you'll have no trouble about weight."

CLYDE M'ARDLE PASSES AWAY

despite his suffering and trouble he continued to broadcast smiles to the thousands of fans in his audiences, who had learned to await the sound of his voice on the air. He was found to have been suffering from stomach trouble and he went to Eliot Hospital, where an operation was performed.

During McArdle's illness the hospital and the newspaper offices were deluged with telephone calls inquiring as to the artist's condition. During the night it was seen that the end was near. The announcer's mother and his son had visited him early in the night, his wife continuing her unceasing vigil until the end came.

Mr. McArdle was born in Penacook, N. H., 34 years ago. With his family he moved to Lowell when a boy and there he attended the Lowell public schools. Possessed of a good voice McArdle soon became associated with the stage in his adopted city and later became identified with the Lowell Opera House.

In 1917 McArdle came to the Inman Square Theatre in Cambridge, going from there to the Somerville Theatre, where he became widely known through his high class stock productions, and making a host of friends throughout that and neighboring cities.

About two years ago, McArdle started on his vaudeville and radio career, also conducting a revue at McPeake's Shore Gardens, Nantasket. But it was as "Smiler" McArdle that he made his greatest hit, entertaining thousands with his broadcast.

Besides his widow, and son, McArdle is survived by his mother, who made her home with him in Arlington. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

made since [illegible] she shocked society on the North Shore and in Indian [illegible] by donning boy's clothes, rowing out to sea in a dory, putting into Essex, far from her father's Gloucester Summer home, and going to work on a farm as a boy.

ESCAPADE ON FARM.

She h[illegible] clipped off her tresses on the way, for bobbed hair then was not the general vogue, and got away with being "Willis Sullivan" on the farm of E. P. Frazier for several days before being discovered.

Then she was turned over t[illegible] city arshal Daniel Casey of Gloucester, and Miss M. H. Pritz, her guardian, took her back to her parents.

There was a hiatus in "Shebo's" career until 1926, when cables told of her engagement to Count Ernst Gottfried von Schmettow of Berlin. The romance was shortlived, however, for the engagement was broken.

SENATOR KING DEMANDS REMOVAL OF CROWDER

Washington, Jan. 27 (A.P.).—Senator King, Democrat, Utah, said today that in his opinion General Enoch Crowder should be removed as American ambassador to Cuba because of his attitude toward American interests in that country and because he had "outlived his usefulness."

The Utah senator expects to make his suggestion soon to a foreign relations sub-committee appointed to consider the King resolution for investigation of the handling of affairs against the Cuban government brought by American citizens residing in Cuba.

DOCKAGE CHARGES FOR FULL CARGOES ABOLISHED

Another step toward developing the port of Boston was taken today when it was announced by the Mystic Terminal Company which recently took over the operation of the waterfront properties of the Boston & Maine Railroad, that no dockage charges will be made against steamers delivering or receiving approximately full cargoes of any one commodity. This applies to such cargoes as pulp, clay, grain, etc.

On cargoes of assorted merchandise, however, the dockage charges will continue at existing rates. This action was taken at the request of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce on the ground that dockage charges should not be made until they become more general at Nort Atlantic ports.

AUTO THUGS IN HOLDUP ROB DORCHESTER MAN

"Touring bandits" procured $10 early today when they staged a holdup on Blue Hill avenue, Mattapan, their victim being Emile Cavette of No. 25 Rexford street, Dorchester.

According to Cavette, he was waiting on Blue Hill avenue, near Haven avenue, when a small, closed car drove up alongside and stopped. All lights were out. Three men were in it. One alighted, drew a revolver and said: "Don't get excited. Just behave and give me your money."

Cavette responded "like a gentleman," he told the police. The thug then returned to the machine and it was driven off.

U. S. LAWYER HELD IN CHINA ON BRIBE CHARGE

Shanghai, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Leonard G. Husar, former United States District Attorney for China, was arrested here today on a charge of having accepted $24,000 in gold in connection with an opium investigation. Bail was set at $15,000.

Husar came to Shanghai three years ago and caused a sensation when, seeing off some friends, he boarded a steamer with his flancee, booked passage and was married by the captain. The sequel appeared in San Francisco recently when Mrs. Husar sued for divorce and charged he had accepted a bribe from opium smugglers.

NORRIS WEEPS; TELLS HOW HE SHOT CHIPPS

Courtroom, Austin, Tex., Jan. 21.—Dr. J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist pastor of Fort Worth, on the witness stand here today, told his story of how he killed Dexter E. Chipps in his church office last July 17.

Weeping and halting over each word, he related how Chipps had come to his office, had demanded that he stop attacks on Chipps' friends, had threatened to kill him, and of how he shot Chipps when he said Chipps came at him with his hands on his hip pocket.

After relating details of the telephone conversation with Chipps, in which the lumberman said he was "coming over to settle" with Norris, the pastor told of the threat Chipps made against him.

"I asked who he was," said Norris. "He said it didn't matter."

WANTED SERMON STOPPED.

"I'm coming over there to kill you. I want you to stop that sermon, meaning one I had prepared for Sunday, and he cursed. I said you're made and I don't want to see you. He said his name was Chipps.

"In a few minutes L. H. Nutt came into my office and I asked him if he knew Chipe. He told me he had seen him at the bank.

"Tell what you know about Chipps being dangerous."

"I believed he was a dangerous man and would carry out his threats."

Norris said he was at his desk when Nutt arrived. He testified Chipps did not knock, but opened the door and came in as Norris was talking to Nutt.

MADE THREATS.

"He sat down on the settee. He clenched his fists, thus." Norris held his clenched fist flat toward the jury. "He said, 'I've got something to say and I'll say it to you. If you say another word about my friends, Meacham, Carr and Roach, I'm going to kill you.'

"He moved over on the edge of the settee and said, 'And I mean every word I say.'

"I then spoke to him for the first time and told him he didn't mean that. Then I told him to leave.

STARTED TO LEAVE.

"Chipps started to leave, but turned around, saying, 'Detract those statements, I'll kill you.' His right hand went back to his hip. I saw the movement."

Norris welled to the pastor's eyes when he asserted that Chipps started at his rapidly, and sobbing, the pastor testified: "I—I—I—I—shot him."

The pastor, his eyes still moist and his frame shaking from short, convulsive sobs, went to his wife and placed his arms about her when court recessed. Mrs. Norris gave her husband a cheering pat on his shoulder and said:

"You did nobly. I know it was hard, but God was with you."

PRINCE'S LETTER TO AMERICAN

Boston, Massachusetts.
January 21, 1927.

Editor of the Boston Evening American,

May I express, through your columns my profound gratitude to the people of your wonderful city for their very warm and cordial reception. I am overwhelmed. Everywhere I received the utmost courtesy and hospitality. The audience in Symphony Hall was delightfully sympathetic. Words fail to express my feelings. I shall look forward to my return next week.

Cordially yours,

Prince William of Sweden

THANKS THE PEOPLE OF BOSTON

DON'T PAY TO 'MITT' PRINCE

but if I may be excused for speaking thus, let me say that I am a self-made man, working for my own living," he said.

DON'T SELL HANDSHAKES.

Prince William emphatically denied his agents in New York were "selling" his handshakes for $50. He declared:

"I'll shake hands with anybody, with those up in the 'peanut gallery' as readily as those in the boxes."

Vice-Consul Carl Johansson was among those who saw him depart for Providence, where he lectures this evening. Tomorrow evening he lectures in New York, and next week returns here and will be given an official reception by Mayor Nichols.

Dispatches from Berlin, referring to his New York lecture, stated that Sweden was indignant because his American agents were selling the Prince's handshakes. Explaining in full, the Prince said:

"My handshake is not for sale for a penny or for millions. I'll shake hands with anyone and the report to the contrary is ridiculous.

WILL SHAKE WITH ANYONE.

"This report originated from the fact that boxes for my New York lecture are being sold at $50 and somebody started saying I would shake hands with all those who occupied the boxes. That is false.

"What I said was that I'd shake hands with anyone, especially those in the 'peanut gallery' as readily as those in boxes, and I would be most grateful to the Boston American to correct any such erroneous report."

His manager explained the box seats in question sold at $7.50 apiece, plus war tax, and that there were eight chairs in each box, bringing the total to $60.

"All for membership in the 'Daddy Long Legs Club,'" said Prince William. "I accepted it in the same spirit in which it was offered. I was certainly around when long legs were given out, but at that I cannot say that I have any complaint about short Pullman berths or hotel beds that some tall men complain of."

Wife's Pa and Ma Are Sued for $50,000 in Lost Love Case

Barnstable, Jan. 21.—The father-in-law question came into its own today when one of them, Zebina H. Small of Dennisport, was sued for alleged alienation of affections.

The mother-in-law, Mrs. Lilla Small, was named as a defendant, however, by Daniel F. O'Connor of Boston, now instructor in English at St. John's College, Brooklyn, N. Y.

O'Connor, asking $50,000, charges that the affections of the wife he married, while attached to the Naval Radio Station at Chatham, have been alienated.

Mrs. O'Connor, was Lillian Small. She is living with her parents in Dennisport after failing in two attempts to obtain a divorce.

ORMISTON EXPECTS WIFE WILL SUE FOR DIVORCE

San Francisco, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—Kenneth G. Ormiston, the so-called "phantom radio man" implicated in the Aimee Semple McPherson case, is in San Francisco visiting his father and mother at their home.

"It's a closed book so far as I am concerned," he said about the case. The former Angelus Temple radio operator admitted his wife was en route here from Australia. He also said he expected she would sue him for divorce.

GIRL DIRECTS OWN RESCUE

Miss Nellie Silverstein, 27, of No. 41 Fabyan street, Dorchester, is dying in the City Hospital, where she was taken after she had directed, in a faint whisper, rescuers who extricated her from underneath the wheels of an Elevated car at No. 1095 Tremont street, Roxbury.

Miss Silverstein, on her way to the theatrical ball, Mechanics Building, was crossing the street in the rain and apparently walked into the path of an outbound Eggleston square car.

Her screams attracted Patrolman Frank Boyle, but he was unable to do anything unaided. Captain John J. Leary of Ladder 13 and some of his men hurried to the scene with jacks.

In a voice that scarcely could be heard the girl told them where the wheels pinned her body to the rails. The car was lifted and a record run was made to the hospital. Miss Silverstein was unconscious on arrival.

She suffered a fractured skull and a fractured left leg.

HUNT FOR $16,500 LEADS FROM GREECE TO LOWELL

A bank book, declared to have contained entries for $16,000 is the object of a search today in Lowell where two deaths are said to have followed its custody.

On request of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Greece, U. A. Draconolas, Greek consul in Boston, sent a letter to Police Superintendent Hugh Downey at Lowell, asking him to find the bank book.

According to the advices from Greece, the book was left in custody of the late Superintendent Redmond Welch in 1916 by Apostolas Sioro, former Lowell resident, when he was injured at work and went to a hospital for an operation.

He had a receipt from Welch, according to the Greek Minister, and subsequently got a receipt from the late Superintendent Thomas Atkinson, who succeeded Welch when Welch died.

The money is declared to have been on deposit in the Washington Savings Bank in Lowell. At four per cent. interest, compounded annually, it would now amount to about $16,500.

What happened to Sioro is not clear, but it is supposed he went back to Greece and died and that papers purporting to be receipts have been found in his effects.

NO FEAR OF EPIDEMIC OF SCARLET FEVER

Fears that scarlet fever cases in this January are sprinting toward an epidemic were allayed today by Deputy State Health Commissioner Dr. Clarence L. Stanman, who said the reported cases are only 31 per cent. above those of the last three Januarys. This is the seasonal period for scarlet fever, and this year's cases are light in comparison to those of previous "scarlet seasons," he said. The estimated fatality rate for 1926 is 1 per cent. There were 1,684 deaths from scarlet fever in 1875. In 1925 there were only 117.

BOINAY DENIES LOVE NOTES TO COLORED GIRL

A bagful of letters, poems and cards, many of endearment, alleged to have been written by Joseph V. Boinay, auto dealer of East Lexington, to Daisy J. Turner, colored, of Lexington, was produced in Middlesex Superior Court today at the trial of her suit in which she seeks $25,000 for an alleged broken promise to wed.

Boinay denied writing any of them except this note dated September 14, 1916: "My dear Daisy: We leave on the 8 a. m. train Friday, September 15."

Boinay denied this had to do with a proposed visit to Daisy's bungalow at Grafton, Vt.

VISITED WITH OTHERS.

Counsel for the girl, who is a laundress, pressed Boinay to admit he had visited her there, but witness insisted the only time he ever was there was with a number of others, all of whom stayed over night.

He admitted some of the letters were in handwriting much like his own, but insisted he never penned them.

"Did you write that poem to Miss Turner?" he was asked by Atty. Ralph W. Gleaz, her counsel, who handed Boinay a paper.

"No I didn't," Boinay retorted.

Q.—Did you ever express to Daisy a wish to visit her at her camp without her father knowing about it? A.—I did not.

DENIES PHONE CALLS.

Q.—Did you call Daisy on the telephone, from the vicinity of Sudbury street for her to come down from Lexington to lunch or dine with you in Boston? Did you try to get her on the telephone at various times on September 17, 1917? A.—No.

Boinay admitted he had called at Daisy's home in Lexington, but said it was with reference to laundry work.

Q.—Did you tell Rose, following the death of your wife, that you and Daisy intended to marry when you get certain matters straightened out? A.—I never told her that.

Q.—Didn't Rose give you a warning from her father to keep away from her sister? A.—No.

Boinay was most dramatic in denial when asked if he ever lived with Daisy as man and wife.

The girl has two other suits against him; one for $10,000 for causing an alleged illegal search of her home, and another for $1,500 for alleged slander.

The courtroom gathering broke forth into laughter at the afternoon session when the girl's attorney asked Boinay if Daisy ever cut off a lock of his hair and placed it in her locket. Boinay claimed this never happened and add with his denial, "there's nothing funny about that to me."

He was shown a gold locket. "Did you give this to Daisy?" "No, I never saw it before," came the reply. He made no presents to the girl, he claimed.

Boinay was questioned regarding

Hub Man Listens-In on Trans-Sea Call With 2-Tube Set

A two-tube radio set in the basement of a Beacon Hill home, made history today when, through the genius of Garnet W. Stanley, he listened-in on the linking up of New York and London by radio-telephone.

"Hello, London." It was the voice in New York speaking.

"Are you there?" responded the voice from London.

The little two-tube set on Beacon Hill picked up the conversation as clearly as though it was set for WRH or WNAC, the well-known Boston stations.

articles he claimed the girl stole from him, after the clerk had read from the record of the Central Middlesex District Court to show that a warrant had been issued Boinay to search Daisy's home.

It enumerated articles alleged to have been taken and attached to it was a return from the Lexington police showing that none of the articles had been found.

HOUSE STANDS BY COOLIDGE ON CRUISERS

Washington, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—Criticising the administration's "drastic economy policy" Sen. Hale (R.) of Maine today urged the Senate to override President Coolidge's objections and appropriate for three new naval cruisers and additional naval aircraft.

"Anything that decreases our military strength cannot be called economy," he said.

The House sustained President Coolidge's objection to the additional cruisers.

"The building of these ships can indicate no overweening desire on our part for excessive naval armament," Senator Hale said.

"We are clearly far below our ratio strength both as respects Great Britain and Japan in light cruiser tonnage."

As another argument why this country should proceed with the construction at this time, Senator Hale called attention that within five years the United States would have to start the replacement of its capital ships at a cost of $60,000,000 annually. To wait until then to begin to balance the fleet and get up to the cruiser ratio with Great Britain and Japan would put an enormous drain on the treasury.

FIRE DAMAGES TAYLOR STOCK

Blaze in Furniture Store Threatens to Destroy Christmas Goods

Fire starting from an unknown cause threatened to destroy the entire Christmas stock of the Taylor Furniture Company at 770 Washington street as the corner of Bennett

The blaze originated near the executives offices on the mezzanine floor and filled the entire store with smoke before it was discovered by a passer-by.

The radio department, located near the offices, suffered the greatest damage, and part of the ceiling was ripped away to get at the flames. Parlor suites and rugs stored in the four upper floors of the building were damaged by the heavy smoke, while stoves, ranges and Christmas toys located in the basement were damaged by water.

BETTY ALDEN'S NEWS AND VIEWS ON GREATER BOSTON SOCIETY

First of Christopher Shop Luncheons to Be Held Thursday Next

THAT THE CHOICEST OF DISHES PREPARED BY A master hand is to be the pleasant privilege of some eighty matrons on Thursday next, when at No. 6 Byron street the first a series of luncheons for the Christopher Shop takes place. Such a series is the very clever idea of Mrs. Horace Morison and her clique, who believe that small and smart luncheons, superlatively prepared and served in an interesting environment, will ring an entirely new note in the philanthropic scheme. Acceptance to their cards for the treat are coming in with such a rush that practically every reservation for the first luncheon is already gone.

FRANCE, THE COUNTRY OF CLEVER CHEFS and gastronomic delicacies, is quite properly the inspiration for the first luncheon. It will be prepared under the personal direction of a Polish count, now in Boston, who, throughout his more than "three score and ten" years has made the cooking of fine dishes his hobby. His dishes have charmed crowned heads, and world-renowned artists in every country of the globe have smacked their lips over this or that confection which he has created. Now he is showing Boston the results of his hobby in such a delicious menu as would tempt even the most seasoned gourmand.

THE CHRISTOPHER SHOP, A PHILANTHROPY for which Mrs. Morison works heart and soul, is now treading just such a path of prosperity as she and other matrons concerned greatly desire for it. At its bright, new, sunny quarters up on Boylston street, the Shop has the care of nearly ninety patients, shutins and incapacitated ones whose goods are bought by the Shop and resold. To each, then, through the Shop's good offices, goes a comfortable amount of cash to help make smooth the path of life, which is, at its best, not a very rosy one. Mesdames Dana Estes, George Swinnerton Parker, Benjamin Franklin Pittman, William F. Warden and Miss Elinor DeW. Jackson are the Shop's devoted workers.

THAT MRS. HENDRICKS HALLET WHITMAN is seriously at work exercising her playwriting abilities is not a surprising bit of news to her intimates of the smart young married set who know of this talent of the former Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor. This versatile and cosmopolitan young woman, a charming wife and mother, and an ornament to the lively Myopia, and Supper Dance Sets, is putting in real hours of work down at the Yale Dramatic School in devotion to her hobby. And something very much worth while in the dramatic line is certain to be the outcome, and then will Mrs. "Henry" Whitman's hosts of friends and admirers, here, there and practically everywhere in the four corners of the world, rejoice with and for her.

WEDDING PLANS FOR MISS ETHEL CUMMINGS and J. Malcolm Forbes are just now in that interesting preliminary state of "setting the day." And the day, to be an early Summer one, so I hear, is of interest to all that large and vastly important family connection brought in by the alliance of these two young people, one belonging to the Robert Treat Paine clans and the other to the family of Forbes. Miss Cummings is the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Cummings of Joy street, and Mr. Forbes is the son of Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes. Miss Cummings, tall and willowy, should make a strikingly effective bride. Just now she is a student at Radcliffe, and as popular as a leader there as she was in her own Young Set circle during and immediately after debutante days. The wedding will not take place until after college closes.

VERY BRIEF AND VERY BRILLIANT was the Boston stay of that extraordinary good-looking young Baltimorean, Miss Matilde Manly, daughter of Mrs. Keyser Manly of the Southern city and sister of the young Mr. Manly who recently married Miss Georgiana Trask Hawkins of Boston. Born to wealth and social position, and having the personal gifts of beauty and graciousness, Miss Manly was in her coming-out Winter one of the most feted buds in the Baltimore upper crust. Her Boston visit was of the week-end sort, and Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge was her hostess.

MRS. CHARLES BOYDEN, THE SMARTEST of well-turned-out young matrons, was one of the fashionable feminine world luncheoning at the Chilton Club yesterday. Mrs. Boyden is a hostess for this evening's Senior Supper Dance, which interests an important contingent at the Hotel Copley-Plaza, while still another coterie, the Copley Society set, celebrates its Black and White Ball in old Rogers Hall. Holker Abbott, leader of the Copley cohorts, and practically all the other personages who steer Society destinies, will be on hand gorgeously arrayed in one expression of the prescribed "Black and White."

NEW MEMBERS OF THE VINCENT CLUB have their hopes and expectations set on the annual Spring show and a "part" therein. To be chosen for Vincent Club membership is to the debutante of each Winter the very acme of things desirable, for to only fifty girls and young matrons is this privilege vouchsafed. To be so chosen sets her apart at once as specially talented and gives her the cachet of smartness. Miss Natalie Potter, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel Potter of New York, and granddaughter of Professor Charles S. Sargent of "Holmles," is one such fortunate young girl. Another is Miss Eugenia Frothingham, daughter of the Langdon Frothinghams; another is Miss Virginia Curtin, and still another, is Miss Molly Walcott.

BEETHOVEN TO BE FEATURED

By MOSES SMITH

The first all-Beethoven program of the season, played by the Flonzaley string quartet last night at Jordan Hall, anticipates the centennial of Beethoven's death, officially scheduled for the latter part of March. From now until then, and perhaps later, the concert-goers will probably be inundated under a flood of programs drawn solely from the music of the musical giant.

Although an "all" program of any kind is to be approached with considerable hesitation, last night's was a happy exception, for not only did the Flonzaleys play in their happiest vein, but there was not the dread of monotony.

In the field of chamber music Beethoven is one of the few who can survive such a test.

Early Christians Who Were 'Drys' Treated as Heretics

Baltimore, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Members of the Orthodox Christian Church in the early part of the Christian era who objected to light wines were termed heretics, Dr. David M. Robinson, professor of archaeology at Johns Hopkins, told members of the University Philological Association today. Reference to an anti-liquor sect, known as Encratites, is made in two inscriptions found by Professor Robinson during excavations in Asia Minor.

"The Encratites," Dr. Robinson said, "were strict vegetarians. They regarded marriage as of the devil. They were such ardent prohibitionists they substituted water for wine at the holy communion.

"Their dry opinions aroused a general feeling against them, and the Orthodox Christian Church decided to exclude them."

TO OPEN NEW RETREAT

A new retreat house at St. Gabriel's Monastery of the Passionist Fathers in Washington street, Brighton, will be opened for public inspection Sunday afternoon.

The building, one of the finest in the country for retreat purposes, has a capacity of fifty men. Its construction was made possible in part by the gratitude of men who have derived consolation from the retreats for laymen the monastery has conducted for twenty years. Men and women visitors will be welcomed Sunday.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Saiji Tachibana, who claimed relationship to the Emperor of Japan, and owns the Japanese newspaper Dai Nippon, is under arrest here on a charge of operating a confidence game.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW IN ROW OVER LETTERS

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Whether the right to publish the contents of a letter belongs to the writer or to the recipient is the point at issue in a heated controversy between George Bernard Shaw, the English playwright, and Will A. Page, Broadway theatrical man.

Legal action is threatened by Mr. Shaw's attorneys, Stern & Rebens, unless four letters written by Mr. Shaw to Mr. Page 26 years ago are deleted from the latter's book "Behind the Curtains of Broadway's Beauty Trust," a treatise on Broadway spectacles and revues.

Buttressed by the opinion of his lawyer, Frederick Goldsmith, that there are many precedents giving him the right to publish the letters, Mr. Page has declined to comply with Mr. Shaw's demand.

Page believes Mr. Shaw would have to cross the Atlantic to prosecute an action and it would be worth a suit to have him come over.

ATTWILL SEES PUBLIC LIGHT OWNERSHIP

Excessive rates charged by private gas and electric light companies can lead only to public ownership of these plants, in the opinion of Henry C. Attwill, chairman of the Commission on Public Utilities.

"Public ownership has no terrors for me," he declared.

"I am inclined to think that so-called holding companies and trusts serve no useful purpose to the public. The probabilities are that their main purpose is to sell shares in these holding organizations pyramided on stock of local companies, rather than efficient operation."

Asked if he viewed the more than eight per cent dividend reported by some of the municipal plants with alarm, Mr. Attwill said:

"Certainly not. On the whole I believe the municipal plants have done a good job."

The commission, he added, reported the companies making more than eight per cent., based on their sworn statements, in compliance with a law passed in 1921. Today, he pointed out, with the dollar down to something like sixty-two cents, eight per cent. does not mean so much.

There is no provision in the law, however, directing the commission to report dividends in excess of eight per cent. made by private companies, it was disclosed, nor other restrictions such as the limiting of depreciation to three per cent. in publicly operated plants.

GETS SIX MONTHS FOR PULLING FALSE ALARM

Found guilty of pulling in a false alarm, Fred E. Cushman, 30, was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction today by Judge John Perrins in Roxbury District Court. Cushman, who lives at No. 32 Hound Hill street, Roxbury, was spotted by a citizen as he pulled the alarm. Cushman appealed. Chief Daniel F. Bennett told Judge Perrins of the menace of false alarm jokers. The court then imposed sentence upon Cushman.

HELD IN POLICE GUN BATTLE

Two South Boston youths, believed to be the pair who engaged in a vigorous gun battle with police of the Fields Corner station in Edward Everett square, were captured today by officers from the Athens street station.

In the pockets of one of the youths the searchers found a number of neckties bearing the labels of a Back Bay men's shop. The boys have been turned over to the police of the Back Bay station. Investigation showed that the men's shop in question had been entered and goods stolen.

Three revolvers hidden in a clump of bushes near the scene of shooting were today found by police, who believe they were used by the two gunmen.

OVERBUILDING ONLY IN SPOTS, THINKS MELLON

Washington, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Secretary Mellon believes the point of saturation in building construction has been reached in only a few localities and he is not alarmed over the general situation.

He is of the opinion the recent reduction in the surtax rates has released considerable funds for public improvements and is one of the main causes of a building boom.

WIVES SHOULD BE PAID, SAYS HENRY FORD

changing conditions, and then people go to war about it.

THINK OUT PROBLEMS.

"People are always making wars to upset outgrown theories.

"We should think out problems, advance a tentative answer, but hold our thought fluid, ready to change or grow as circumstances requires. People must think things out for themselves, and they must learn that as soon as you really start to think about a problem, you are bound to accomplish something."

I suggested that sometimes progress seemed to come out of war, had not the women of the world gained much in economic and political freedom as a result of the World War?

"I wouldn't say that positively," denied Mr. Ford. "How do you know that they would not have made the same progress, without a war, that the time was not ripe for this evolution to appear?"

It seemed evident that Henry Ford visualizes a time to come when women will be so emancipated from the drudgery of oft-repeated chores in cooking and housework that they can go out of the home to engage in wage-paying productive work. The money thus earned will provide for themselves and their children still more labor-saving devices, comforts and recreation.

SUBSTITUTE FOR MILK.

He had said that domesticated animals must go to give way to food stuffs compounded scientifically in the laboratories.

But what about babies.

I wondered: could one give a baby a pellet of vitamines and proteins and sugars instead of a bottle of milk.

"Why not?" asked Mr. Ford "We will find a substitute for milk equally healthful and less expensive to produce."

Then Mr. Ford showed his human side. He had been talking about my three boys and our home on Cape Cod.

"Don't you find yourself that it is hard to manage a home for your children and carry on your literary work?" he asked.

"Yes," I answered, "but children need a mother, whatever else happens."

"I know that," said Mr. Ford sympathetically. "And if we can liberate women along some lines similar to those we have talked over, they will have more time for their children."

His shook hands and the interview was over.

A moment later his grey head was poked around the corner of the door of the tap room of the Red Horse tavern for one last word.

"Treat it nicely," said Henry Ford earnestly, "and maybe some good will come out of it. Remember, food finance and education are what are going to set women free!"

The office of Cardinal O'Connell at Granby street announced that the cardinal had left the city for a few weeks vacation during which he will take a much needed rest.

Two Win $40 Bets by Eating Fifteen Pounds of Steak

Waterbury, Ct., Jan. 21 (A.P.)—Two Waterbury men were "taking things easy" today after an eating orgy during which they together ate fifteen pounds of steak.

Six pounds were consumed in the first fifteen minutes, but after that they went at the beef more slowly, finishing the entire fifteen pounds in one hour and fifty minutes to win a bet of $20 each.

FORD PLANNED TO 'TURN AUTOS OUT LIKE PINS'

Detroit, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—To turn out automobiles "one like the other, as pins coming from a pin factory are like the other, or matches from a match factory are like the other," was the idea of Henry Ford shortly after he established his first plant in 1903.

This was the testimony today of John W. Anderson, former partner of Mr. Ford, at the tax appeal hearing here in which former minority stockholders of the Ford company are opposing an additional levy of more than $30,000,000 against their 1919 incomes, enhanced by the sale of their holdings to Mr. Ford.

ONLY NEEDED FLOOR SPACE.

Anderson, with Horace H. Rackham drew the original incorporation papers of the Ford Motor Company and invested $5,000 in the motor company. The government now wants $1,431,425.35 additional in income taxes on the profits Anderson, made on the sale of his stock to Mr. Ford.

When Henry Ford drew the parallel between pins and automobiles, Anderson said, "I remarked 'That's all right with pins but with automobiles their manufacture is complicated.'

"Mr. Ford said:

"The principle is just the same, all we need is the floor space."

At that time the plant had 250 square feet of floor space.

FORD SEES MARKET.

"Thinking of the myriad of pins," Anderson continued, "I said to Mr. Ford, 'How would you sell so many automobiles, where would you find a market for them?'

"Mr. Ford said: 'You needn't fear about that; the people will buy them. When you make automobiles in quantities you will make them cheaper and will find more people with sufficient money to buy them at lower prices. Of course, you must make them simple with not too many parts.'

FRATERNITY HOUSE AT WILLIAMS DESTROYED

Williamstown, Jan. 21 (A. P.)—Saint Anthony Hall, the Delta Psi Fraternity House at Williams College, was ruined by fire today. The loss is estimated at $35,000. Twenty students escaped, and then returned and saved their personal belongings and some of the more valuable furnishings. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The building was of stone and was erected many years ago from plans drawn by Stanford White of New York.

POLICE FOIL 2 IN BREAK; TAKE SUSPECT IN CHASE

Timely arrival of two policemen, on a tour of inspection, is thought to have frustrated an attempt to enter the office of Thorpe & Martin Co., No. 70 Franklin street, today. One of two men found loitering near the scene was arrested after a chase.

The prisoner gave his name as Walter Lynch, 34, of Providence. He was booked as a suspicious person at Station 2. The other man escaped in an automobile.

HOTEL STATLER HEAD STARTED AS BELLBOY

Climaxing a career begun as a bellboy, Bradbury F. Cushing, one of the most widely known hotelmen in New England, will be the manager of the new Hotel Statler. Announcement of his appointment was made today by President E. M. Statler.

B. F. Cushing

A Lynn boy Cushing worked as a "bell hop" in a Maine hotel while going to high school and there he acquired a lasting love of hotel work. But he finished high school and took a business college course before again entering this employment.

In 1897, at the age of twenty-three, he became a storeroom clerk at the University Club, from there went to the Hotel Vendome, later going to the "front office" and then took a position with the Ricker hotel interests.

His career includes service at the Poland Spring House, thirteen years in charge of the Lake Sportford Club properties in New Hampshire.

DEATH OF BRIDE REVEALS WEDDING

SAYS KING TALKED OF DEATH PACT

Dressed in mourning and a string of heavy black beads encircling her neck, Mrs. Leah F. Potter, a divorcee, of No. 452 Audubon road, who is expected to be a prominent figure in the court battle over the will of Frederick G. King, shoe manufacturer, who disappeared after leaving suicide notes, today denied that she had entered a suicide pact with her aged friend.

"He hinted at suicide for both of us, but I know he was only jesting," declared Mrs. Potter. "It is a most unfortunate affair," she continued "for Mr. King was a high ideal man and so wonderful to all his friends. He was good to me when I was in trouble and I was good to him.

"Mr. King had been a friend of my family and I mine for many years. I saw him occasionally and on those occasions he brought me books, flowers and fruit."

Mrs. Potter said she was surprised when she heard that she had been remembered generously in King's will. She denied that he told her that he "expected to die shortly."

As soon as the mystery of King's disappearance is solved, the court battle over his will is expected to be started by his widow, who is at present in Bumpus N. H., and Mrs. Potter, who has engaged counsel.

Attorney Benjamin I. Abrams, counsel for Mrs. Potter, is convinced that King is actually dead, while Ebridge R. Anderson, attorney for Mrs. King, is as equally sure that the man is alive.

An Amazing Love Story of a Misunderstood Hub Working Girl

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Gay Moore and her cousin, Christine Noe, are employed in the State street house of Johnstone Baird, Gay as typist and Christine as telephone operator. Christine is in love with Roger Pennington, whose wealth and social position appeal to her love of luxury. Stanley Baird is in love with Gay. Gay returns his love. Stan leaves home and takes a position as automobile mechanic. Stan's family disown him. Gay and Stan marry and are blissfully happy in their little apartment. Stan and his "boss" are working on an invention. Christine tells Gay she is a fool for living poorly when she might have every luxury.

Gay and Stanley have been married a month, when Stan receives and invitation from his mother to attend the coming out party of his young cousin. No mention is made of Gay, Stan refuses to accept, but Gay insists that he attend.

Stan gets home very late. Gay jealously imagines him with Mimi Brooks. The Johnstone Baird employes are giving their annual ball. Gay agrees to go. Penny tells Christine he must accompany Peggy Baird. In a huff Christine invites Ivor Barclay to escort her.

ATHLETIC UNREST AND SCANDAL HITS EUROPE

ATHLETIC unrest is not confined to this country and its big sports. The chess champion of Soviet Russia has just been canned because, as the tribunal decreed "he exhibited the typically bourgeois vice of putting his pocketbook above his principles." Evidently they do things more smoothly in Europe, even in Soviet Russia.

Nick Flatley

Had Mister Bogolubov, the indicted chessman, pulled his stuff in this sector, he would have been charged with sloughing games, or working in with the gamblers, or padding the swindle sheet, as the boys call the expense account. It carries much less contumely to pass on because of an alleged bourgeois vice.

Think how much finer it would have sounded some six years ago had Eddie Cicotte, Chick Gandil, Swede Risberg and others been dropped from baseball because they displayed a bourgeois tendency to look under the counter panes before they were ready to retire for requisite slumber.

It would not have shocked the sensibilities of the populace nearly so much had Fred Fulton, the pallied plasterer, been accused of a bourgeois inclination to seek a prone or reclining position on the canvas, before he had been harshly smitten on the chin.

American sports are still in their infancy. We haven't learned the finesse that ages of culture brings. But, at that, we seem to be doing pretty well. The boys collect more than the Russians, or anybody else, and that is really what counts.

Some of our leading managers are showing a bourgeois tendency to demand vulgar sums for their fighters, but while the bourgeois public is ready to storm the gates, the managers can't be blamed a whole lot.

The Princeton goal post complex is considered bourgeois in some of our best circles, but a victory goes with each set of posts. And there haven't been many victories in the best circles in the last few years.

PRIZE FIGHT MANAGERS IN THESE DAYS DON'T DRINK, BUT THEY GET THEIR SPLITS JUST THE SAME.

A scandal rumor does as much harm as a real showdown. That's why this baseball row is so tough.

COMMISSIONER KNOWS CROWD PSYCHOLOGY

BOXING COMMISSIONER EUGENE BUCKLEY is a student of crowd psychology. That's why he doesn't want the names of fight judges made public before the battles. A judge, when he's unknown, can make his decision in peace and quietude. The pickers are honest and give 'em as they see them.

If the mobs knew who was judging, there would be booing and commotion when decisions didn't happen to hit the popular fancy. If the boys who have to do the work were known generally, they might be tossed around a bit, when a crowd broke loose. For there is a bit of the bourgeois stuff mentioned above in the makeup of a boxing gang. The fans act, and think later. The results of the first frenzy are likely to be bad if there's any particular object.

When it's just general indignation, it's taken out on chairs and things, and doesn't do any particular harm. The judges wouldn't find it profitable to try to deal with gamblers, if they wanted to. The good fighters, with fame ahead, don't go for the fake stuff. The others make no never mind.

SAM LANGFORD now has quite a bankroll, and should hang onto it. He has certainly had his share of experience with fair weather friends.

ARMY CANCELS GAME WITH B. C.; DUE TO LACK OF ICE

The athletic directors at the United States Military Academy at West Point wired the Boston College A. A. hockey team today cancelling the ice hockey game between the Eagles and the Army team scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

The Boston College team was prepared to leave on the midnight train tonight, following their game with Tech at the Arena. The West Point authorities gave as their reason for cancelling the game lack of ice owing to the mild weather conditions.

This is the first time in a number of years that the West Pointers have had to cancel ice games at this season of the year.

BROKEN HEEL TO KEEP HERBERTS OUT 3 WEEKS

President Charles F. Adams of the Boston Bruins announced today that the local hockey squad will be without the services of Jimmy Herberts. The star Bruin player is suffering from a broken bone in the heel, according to X-ray plates which were taken today.

Herberts will be out of the Boston team's lineup for at least three weeks.

ROBERTSON ENTERS K. C. '600'

B. A. A. Track Captain to Start in Race for Bishop Cheverus Trophy

AT the request of Jack Ryder, coach of the Boston Athletic Association, the games committee of the Knights of Columbus has consented to permit Ray Robertson, captain of the Unicorn track team, to enter the Bishop Cheverus 600-yard run, one of the feature events at the annual meet of the K. of C. Saturday night in Mechanics Hall.

The entry of Robertson comes at an opportune time for Ryder, Since the New York boy sends word that he has been ill and may not be in the best condition when a race is called. In that event the Casey officials will not urge him to run as they wish to make this the big event of the night.

Robertson is well known hereabouts. He is a joint holder of the American record for running 400 metres and has been home under the American record for 440 yards.

The pals George Lenes of the New York A. C., Ray Dodes of the Illinois A. C., Pincus Sober of the Holy Name Society, Walter Mulvihill of the B. A. A. and Ray Robertson also of the Unicorn into the race.

It is the intention of the Casey games committee to permit just four to start in this race. The actual starters will not be known until the event is called. All five will be in the hall and ready. Lenes, Mulvehill and Dodge are certainties. Either Robertson or Sober will be scratched to keep the field within racing bounds.

Two more relay races have been added to the program. The Boston Athletic Association one-mile team will run a picked all-collegiate 1560-yard race, while the Holy Cross freshman four meets the Harvard freshmen over the same distance.

HUSSEY STARTS DRIVE ON SPEED MARKS

BOSTON COLLEGE STAR IS FLYING

Frank Hussey, according to Coach Jack Ryder, is headed toward some sprinting records. The youngster has been running like a deer on the B. C. board track. His starting has improved, and he will try to show it in the K. of C. games tomorrow night.

Los Angeles, Jan. 21 (A.P.)—Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, and Leo Lomski, of Aberdeen, Washn, have ended training for their bout at an open air boxing show at Wrigley field tomorrow afternoon.

Boston University basketball five starts on its annual two-day trip this afternoon. Nine players, manager and coach will make the jaunt. The first game will be at Amherst tonight. The team will stay there one night, and play Massachusetts Agricultural College tomorrow evening.

SIX CLASSES CARDED FOR ST. MARY'S SHOW

From the calibre of the entries being received by the committee in charge of the amateur boxing tournament to be held under the auspices of St. Mary's C. A. Monday evening in the gymnasium at the corner of Harvard and Prospect streets, Cambridge, all indications point to the fans witnessing one of the best tournaments ever staged around Greater Boston.

There is competition in the 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and heavyweight classes, and with the topnotchers in each of these classes entered, plenty of action is assured from the opening to the closing gong.

OWNERS SPLIT ON JOHNSON

Fireworks at Landis Hearing Off if League Heads Back Ban; Support Wavers

CHICAGO, Jan. 21 (A.P.)—The growing list of nominations for the job of President Ban Johnson of the American League is a bit premature, the founder of the league and its ruler for more than a quarter of a century intimated today.

Asked whether he had given a thought to resigning, President Johnson declined to commit himself, but he did remark:

"I have been in harness steadily for 24 years."

Under his written contract and a later resolution of league directors, Johnson's presidential authority runs until 1935 at $40,000 a year.

The main issue at next Sunday's session of the American League directors, Mr. Johnson indicated, is to decide what to tell Commissioner Landis the following day about the dismissal of Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker. There also is bound to be discussion around the publication of the Dutch Leonard letters, given the commissioner by the league directors last September. All but Johnson signed a waiver for the commissioner, authorizing him to use the letters as he saw fit.

If the league directors sustain their president in his handling of the Cobb-Speaker case, as they did last September, the possibilities of fireworks at the commissioner's hearing the next day will be largely eliminated.

If they vote to withdraw their support from Johnson because of his remarks since the Leonard letters were made public by the commissioner, it may mean the resignation of Johnson, with indications that he may have something more to say in that event.

The league directors are E. S. Barnard of Cleveland, Clark Griffith of Washington, Phil Ball of St. Louis and Frank Navin of Detroit.

Names of Toole and Barnard Are Suggested

New York, Jan. 21 (I.N.S.).—With Ed Barrow's formal withdrawal from the field of avowed candidates for Ban Johnson's job in the event that the American League president was forced to resign, local baseball circles today professed to believe that a compromise candidate might be selected. John K. Tener, former president of the National League, is receiving but slight support here, but E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland club, and John Conway Toole, president of the International League, have been mentioned in this connection.

HORNSBY SUED BY ST. LOUIS ATTORNEY

St. Louis, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Rogers Hornsby, former St. Louis Cardinal manager, today was sued for $5,250 attorney fees by Frank J. Quinn, who alleged he was retained to defend Hornsby in 1923 when club-owners suspected Hornsby had been incited to acts of insubordination by John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, so the Giants could get him.

This adds one more link to the chain of Hornsby's troubles, as he is preparing to leave for New York to join the Giants after his recent trade.

Frank Moore, Cincinnati betting commissioner, has announced he will sue Hornsby for approximately $20,000 which he alleges he advanced to bet on horse races and to buy real estate.

LaBarba to Clash With Vacca Here

Fidel LaBarba, world's flyweight champion, will battle Johnny Vacca of Brighton in a ten-round bout at A Commercial A. C. show at Mason Building on February 14 provided he scores a victory over Elky Clark tonight.

Matchmaker Bob McKidy of the Commercial Club is in New York to secure the signature of George Blake, LaBarba's manager, to the articles of agreement.

Black has virtually agreed to all terms for the match. The champion will receive a $2,000 guarantee with a privilege of accepting 20 per cent of the receipts. The weight for the contest will be 118 pounds, which will mean that LaBarba's title will not be at stake.

"TEDDY" COLE REPORTS TO HINES AT BROOKLINE

"Teddy" Cole, Brookline High's veteran 600-yarder, reported to Coach Tom Hines following a long lay-off due to parental objections. Cole, with the permission of his legal advisers, joined the squad at today's indoor workout. His debut in actual competition will be made in a meet with Newton scheduled on January 28. His performance in the 600-yard run and relay events will strengthen the Wealthy Townies' chances of annexing the State title.

LABARBA 2-1 CHOICE TO WIN

World's Flyweight Champion Picked to Defeat Elky Clark in Gotham Tonight

By JACK CONWAY

FIDEL LABARBA will cast his precious world's flyweight championship into the ring at New Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight when he battles Elky Clark, European title holder, in a twelve-round bout.

It will be a conflict of Flaming Youth, blessed with the speed of a shooting star, against Age aided and abetted by Old Man Experience.

LaBarba is the standard bearer of Youth. He is scarcely twenty-one years of age. He comes from the sunny slopes of California where there is an abundance of outdoor athletic competition twelve months of each year.

Jack Conway

Clark, the veteran, is 29 years of age according to his own admissions. This probably means he is past 30. Professional boxers, like the prima donnas of the opera, are very sensitive creatures when it comes to revealing the number of Winters they have passed on this little planet of ours.

Clark is married and the father of four children. La Barba is still heart free.

The sharp featured young man who avoid serious contact with hard labor by picking 'em right have installed LaBarba a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting for tonight's skirmish.

After sizing up the records of the midget warriors, I am inclined to believe that the boys who make the odds have exercised good judgment. In a battle between Youth and Age in the ring, Youth usually comes out ahead.

FRANKIE GENARO, former American flyweight champion, will have Newsboy Brown of Sioux City, Ia., as an opponent in the semi-final of ten rounds. Labarba won the world's title by upsetting Genaro. The latter was generally recognized as world's flyweight boss upon the untimely death of Pancho Villa.

Billy Kelly of Scranton and Trip Lindsey, Filipino battler, will meet in another ten.

JIM MALONEY, South Boston heavyweight, who is matched to battle Jack Delaney in New York on February 18, will swing into action against Tiny Herman of Omaha in a ten-round bout at Syracuse tonight. Herman is a 220-pounder, but as he is very slow he will experience difficulty in keeping out of the way of Maloney's sock. This mill should result in a decisive victory for Dan Carroll's protege.

Star Vaulters in I. C. 4A. Meet

New York, Jan 21 (A.P.) The absence of Charlie Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter, from the list of competitors this season has not lessened the attraction to Americans who will exhibit the merits of their bamboo poles at the Madison A. A. games here February 2. Hoff made his American debut at the indoor carnival last year.

Vaulters already entered for the Millrose spectacle are E. E. "Skeeter" Meyers, of the Chicago A. A., former intercollegiate and National A. A. U. outdoor champion; Paul Harrington, of the Boston A. A. U., present outdoor A. A. U. champion, and Frank Nestor, James star. Norman Sherrill of the New York A. Stagg, who is also the Penn athlete, has been assured Millrose officials by the Penn star.

Topped by a large list of entries in the heavy weight class, one to point for with followers of the sport, it is expected that more than 30 bouts will make up the program Saturday night.

How the University Club of this city will fare in the next Olympic hockey competition at Amsterdam should it be selected to represent this country will in a measure be determined tonight at the Arena when Boston's crack amateur club hockey outfit matches its skill against the Shamrocks of Ottawa, a team that stands as an excellent choice of wearing the Maple Leaf in the Olympic competition

This game is part of a double header with Boston College and Technology furnishing the other half.

This is the first international amateur club game of the season and Boston hockey fans who like dazzling hockey will get their fill when these two crack teams square away tonight.. The Shamrocks come here well girded for trouble. They have a dozen players to call upon to offset the flock of spares at the command of the University Club.

COCHRAN TO SCOUT HOPPE

Walker Cochran, youthful Cabornian, will "scout" Willie Hoppe during the latter's 6,000-point match with Erich Hazenlacher at the Twentieth Century Athletic club next week. Cochran is next in line for a chance for the world's championship now held by Hoppe. He is at present practicing in New York, but expects to rest a few days and come to Boston to see the champion in action

Golf Notes

THE Albemarle Golf Club will hold its annual meeting Feb. 21. Although many of the officials feel that they have done their bit for Albemarle, and would welcome a chance to get out of office, they have all agreed to serve another term. During the last few years, Albemarle has undergone many changes and it is now one of the finest 18-hole courses in Greater Boston.

HENRY J. NICHOLS will serve as president again at Albemarle with F. J. Fessenden as vice-president; W. S. Osborne, treasurer; K. D. Kempton, secretary; E. P. Campbell, chairman of the house committee; William B. Hanna, chairman of the golf committee; Augustus Wakefield, chairman of the greens committee; Lester Hunter, chairman of house committee, and J. M. Everett, William Rogers, William Hayden and A. Lebe—— directors.

IA B soon as it ——— announced that J. J. Lannin, former owner of the Red Sox, had offered his Salisbury Country Club for the coming International golf matches, professionals throughout this country were almost unanimous in their opinions that Long Island and not Pittsburgh, should be the scene of that classic. Any man who hands over $3,000, as did J. J. Lannin for the P. G. A. championships last season, is truly deserving of all possible consideration.

GEORGE AULBACH, the little professional from the Arlmont Golf Club, is the authority for the statement that Course No. 5 at Salisbury, Long Island, offers one of the most severe tests of golf he has ever seen. George admits that he has never seen Oakmont, which they tell him is hard, but he still holds to his opinion that Salisbury will bother any and all golfers as much as any course in this country.

WOODSIES AND WHALERS MEET

When the New Bedford Whalers visit the Hub tomorrow they will be minus Andy Stevens, the most colorful center in the American Soccer League. Andy was the leading goal scorer last year.

Stevens has been suspended indefinitely by President Cunningham for assaulting Referee White in the game against Philadelphia last Saturday. The penalty is a hard blow to the Whalers as it may cost them the championship.

This will be the New Bedford team's first visit to the Hub this season and a lot of interest is being shown due to the fact that the Whalers are only a few points behind the Woodsies and of late have been tallying more goals than any other club in the circuit, their most notable feat being a record score of 14 goals to 0 against the Phillies last week.

They don't figure, however, to turn in any horse score against the Woodsies who at the present time are travelling at a faster pace than any other club in the race and have undoubtedly the finest defence in the game.

The Blue and Gold fresh from their victories over Coats and Brooklyn last week-end are all primed to continue their string at the expense of the Whalers and strengthen their hold on second place.

PETROLLE HELD TO DRAW BY SPUG MEYERS IN CHI

Chicago, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—Billy Petrolle is knocking at the lightweight champion's door but apparently the Farco, N. D., challenger cannot shade Spug Meyers, clever Idahoan.

A chance at Sammy Mandell's crown was promised Petrolle if he beat Myers last night, but after ten peppery rounds two judges and a referee agreed that the fight was a draw.

The upper ranks in the featherweight division were somewhat thinned, however, when Ray Miller won the decision over Eddie Shea, also of Chicago and also a prominent challenger. Ringsiders called it the finest fight of Miller's career so far.

A gate of $31,000 packed the coliseum with a capacity crowd of 9,000 fans.

ST. MARY'S BASKETEERS TO OPPOSE OKO CLUB FIVE

St. Mary's C. A. basketball team will meet the strong Oko Club of Dracket on next Thursday evening in St. Mary's Hall, Cambridge and one of the largest crowds of the season is expected. The Okos are enjoying another successful season and to date have lost one game. They have a well balanced team and have rolled up some high scores against their opponents. St. Mary's C. A. know the Okos style of play and feel confident that they will be the second team to stop them.

In the Oko lineup will be seen Klim, Reardon, Morey, Brophy and Higgins. St. Mary's C. A. will present their regular lineup.

J. R. HODDER TO HEAD BOSTON YACHT CLUB

At the annual meeting of the Boston Yacht Club, to take place in the Bowie Wharf clubhouse next Wednesday evening, the following officers will be elected:

Commodore, J. R. Hodder; vice-commodore, E. C. Lang; secretary-treasurer, Walter Burgess; executive committee for two years, C. E. Lauriat, Jr.; W. H. Jones, A. L. Barr and C. E. Jaffrey, Jr.

School Rivals to Clash Today on Track

Single Sticker Is on the Ways

New York, Jan. 21 (A.P.).—The first large single sticker built in America in the past thirteen years is on the ways—a potential defender of America's cup. Plans for the vessel class bar with the Resolute, Vanitie and the Defiance, that came out in defence against Sir Thomas Lipton's efforts to lift the famous trophy some years ago.

The yacht, owned by Robert E. Tod, of New York, has been promised for Spring delivery by the Herreshoff Manufacturing Company, of Bristol, Ct., builders of the Resolute, that staved off Lipton's challenge with the Shamrock IV., seven years ago. A recent announcement from abroad disclosed that William Fife, Scotch boat builder, would soon turn out the Shamrock V for Sir Thomas' final cup challenge.

MERMAIDS SEEK NATIONAL TITLE

Aspiring young mermaids will compete for one of the two national junior indoor A. A. A. U. championships to be held in connection with the coming swim meet under the auspices of the Boston Swimming Association in the Boston Y. M. C. A. pool February 22.

The two title events are the 100 yards breast stroke race for women and low board diving for men.

The junior breast stroke championship for women should attract some of the leading mermaids in the country. New England will be represented by Katherine Mearis, Helene Weyler and Rena McDonald, all of the Boston Swimming Association; Helen Perry of the Worcester Boys' Club Auxiliary, and Anna Baum of Bridgeport.

The entries of many mermaids from New York and elsewhere are expected soon at the office of H Bradlee Fenno, president of the club, at No. 60 State Street, City

The low board diving contest for men, with such notables from this section as Dave Browning, Indoor New England diving champion, national scholastic champion and wearer of numerous other honors, and John Jastonis, of the Norwood Swimming Club, out doors champion, competing should be a thrilling affair.

Gunn's Wit Prevents Big Golf Scandal

By BILL GRIMES

While the American amateurs were abroad last season for the Walker Cup and British amateur and open championships, they were received most royally throughout England and Scotland

The United States Walker Cup team received invitations to many banquets given in their honor. At every banquet the Americans were called upon to say a few words, and along with the others William C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, who is the president of the United States Golf Association, was invited to speak, and always he orated on the advisability of a standard ball

The standard ball idea originated in England, but Fownes has championed this movement since its inception.

While the Walker Cup team was at Muirfield for the British amateur championships, which Jesse Sweetzer captured, Fownes coaxed the players to depart for St. Andrews to condition themselves for the Walker matches. The players did not look with favor upon the proposal and unanimously declined to leave until the championship had been decided. Evan threats to send them back home failed to register with the players.

Sweetzer was the only American left in the championship when Fownes came out with the order that the American go to St. Andrews.

Finally Fownes decided to call a special meeting, at which he demanded the presence of every member of the Walker Cup team. Things looked bad. The players were about ready to revolt, but a humorous retort by Walter Gunn not only broke the pressure but prevented a scandal which would have worked out to the disadvantage of the game.

Upon calling the meeting to order, President Fownes asked the gathering what subject should be discussed, and up jumped Gunn, and in best Southern drawl said: "Don't you all think, Mr. Fownes, that it is about time we all heard a few words about that there standard ball?"

The day was saved. The players were allowed to stay at Muirfield to watch Sweetzer take the British amateur classic and celebrate in a fitting manner the achievements of that great New Yorker. After celebrating the Sweetzer victory, the United States Walker Cup team went to St. Andrews and cleaned up

Kaplan Wins Odd Fall Over Maguire

Abe Kaplan, the Jewish heavyweight wrestling champion, tossed Ted Maguire, of Ireland, two falls out of three in the main bout at the Grand Opera House.

Kaplan won the first fall in 24 minutes with a head chancery over his shoulder. Maguire took the second in 19 minutes with a body lift and Kaplan the third in 7 minutes, 30 seconds, with a body lift.

In the semi-final Pat McGill and Stanley Stasiak wrestled 40 minutes to a draw. Sam Stolarsky threw Evan Ludlow in 19 minutes, and Alexander Garkawenkia threw Frank Dutcher, Don Orlando and Chief Montour, one after the other.

Splendid Recipes That Come From Sunny South

By MARTHA LEE

HAVEN'T you often envied the people of the charming South their justly famous cookery? The old city of Charleston, in particular, is responsible for many delicious dishes.

Old Mammy truly deserves a crown for her cookery. She rivals the most famous chef in her deft touch and instinctive knowledge in concocting mouth-water delicacies. A touch of this, a dash of that, baked just so long, and Mammy proudly bears into the dining room some dish as famous as Virginia ham. I've been lucky enough to get these recipes for you straight from the Sunny South.

Chicken Pilau.—Dress a plump fowl for roasting, but omit the stuffing. Place in a large pot with a generous slice of bacon and cover with warm water. Boil gently until thoroughly done and tender. Pick over and wash two cupfuls of whole rice, put it in another boiler and cover well with the liquor in which the fowl has been cooked.

Start the cooking of the rice before the fowl is quite finished. Cook the rice gently, taking care that it does not burn, and add more liquor as it is needed. When the rice is done, the liquid should all be absorbed and each grain of rice should stand apart, but be perfectly done. Set it at the back of the stove or in a warm oven to become dry and fluffy.

When ready to serve, spread the rice on a hot meat platter. Cut up the fowl for serving, arrange the pieces on the bed of rice and pour over all a sauce made by mashing smoothly the yolks of four hard-cooked eggs and adding to them a pint of the pot liquor and the whites of the eggs finely chopped. Garnish with parsley and serve very hot.

Hopping John.—To make this quaint dish, boil half a pound of red cow peas, well washed, one-quarter pound of bacon and one pod of hot red pepper in two quarts of water until the peas are tender. Then add salt, the exact amount of which will depend on the saltiness of the bacon, and two cupfuls of whole rice, carefully washed.

You may possibly need to add another cupful of water. Boil about twenty minutes longer, then set to the back of the stove, first adding about one tablespoonful of water. Let this steam a bit longer. It is done when each grain of rice stands apart from the rest, but is perfectly done.

Crab Pie.—To one pint of crab meat, add three eggs well beaten, one-third cupful of melted butter, a scant teaspoonful of mustard, a generous dash of cayenne pepper, half a teaspoon Worcestershire, one teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of milk and one of cream, one tablespoonful of chopped green pepper and half a cupful of cracker crumbs.

Mix all together and put in a buttered baking dish; sprinkle the top with more crumbs and dot over with butter. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) until set and a light brown. If you leave the dish in the oven too long or have the oven too hot it will spoil it by making the consistency thin and watery.

Gumbo.—One chicken, hot lard, one onion, one or two red pepper pods, flour, a pint of okra, two dozen young okra pods, or you can use the canned okra, cerefied or fresh tomatoes; six or eight large tomatoes (more if small); water, salt.

Cut up the chicken; salt and flour it on each side; put it in the frying pan with hot lard until it is a golden brown, but not done. Add an onion, and one or two red peppers from which the seeds have been removed and the pulp chopped coarsely. Wash and cut the okra, peel and cut six or eight large tomatoes (more if small). Add okra and tomatoes to chicken and fry all, stirring well. Then put all of these ingredients into the soup pot, cover with water, and boil gently for four or five hours. Season with a little more salt if necessary, and serve.

SOME MEN treat a WOMAN the way SOME WOMEN Treat a FAN. They handle her so EXPERTLY that the poor DUMB THING does not Realise she is being MADE USE of

A PRETTY WOMAN may take a FAN with her to Use merely as a DECORATION, Yet she RARELY THINKS that a MAN may be TAKING HER out for the SAME reason.

A feather FAN and a PRETTY WOMAN may not Be taken SERIOUSLY by some MEN, But, at the same time, they are SELDOM ROUGHLY HANDLED.

And MANY a WOMAN probably thinks it is BETTER to be LOVED and LOST with TECHNIQUE than to be "PRESERVED" Forever WITHOUT any.

Rich Women Who Flit About the Great Wide World

By WINIFRED BLACK.

SHE had lived abroad for years—the American woman. Once she had a house in London for a while. Then she took an apartment in Paris, where she could look out into the trees and send her little pet dog out into the Bois for the promenade every morning.

Afterward she went to the south of France and found a chateau with a drawbridge and a moat and three or four saloons. She lived there quite a while. Then she went over to Scotland and leased a rat-haunted, bat-whirring feudal castle with towers and an old man who played the bagpipes. There were gillies and a ghost and everything.

Then she wandered over to Ireland and lived in the darlingest old house down near Killarney. She saw the world there through the dew and the sunshine and the smiles and the tears of an Irish year. In the Fall, when the yellow gorse and the purple heather were almost unearthly in their fragrant beauty, and the Kerry women threw their black cloaks about them and stepped down the road for an evening walk like strange creatures under some enchanted spell—and you began to feel as if you heard elfin music far away—the American woman grew restless again.

She went to Spain and lived in a house with a patio and a fountain and barred windows and walls four feet thick and Castilian roses foaming over the inner balconies and all the bells of Christendom ringing out the hours all through the night. But she got tired of the Spanish cooking and she never really did like the fetiches, though she tried to pretend to like them—red peppers, garlic and all.

And so the American woman went over to Switzerland for a while and watched the sun set over the snow peaks and amused herself looking at the men dressed in their embroidered breeches and long cloaks and broad hats with feathers in them.

But when the Summer was gone the American woman tired of Switzerland and sunsets and sunrises and moonlight excursions. So she went to the Riviera. There she was taken ill and there she died with only a casual stranger and a scornful ladies' maid to close her eyes and hear her last words.

The casual stranger arranged a funeral for the American woman at the American church and nobody came but two or three old women and an invalid or so.

I wonder what those last words were, by the way? Did they in any way concern a little American village in the Middle West where the American woman lived when she was little and had a mother and a little brother and a big sister and wore her hair in a braid with a bow at the end of it and thought the world was a beautiful place, just like a big iridescent bubble — if you could only manage to get out and see it.

When the cold little service in the cold little church was over, her body was cremated.

I wonder if they scattered the ashes in the wind? Poor woman! I should think she would want to lie quietly in her own little grave among her own people—wouldn't you?

Lighting Schoolroom

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

IF you have children in school you have a direct interest and personal responsibility in the matter of lighting the schoolroom.

Many cases of serious eye trouble, nervous breakdown, headaches and failure in study come from defective lighting.

I observe that this very practical problem has been engaging the serious attention of scientific authorities in England. There the Illuminating Engineering Society, through its committee on the lighting of schools, which met before the war, defined the minimum permissible illumination of a school place as one per cent. of the outside window-sill illumination and the minimum strength of artificial light as two foot-candles.

Dr. James Kerr, at a recent meeting of the society, expressed the opinion that this minimum should be at least doubled. He suggested that it would be better to lay down an optimum rather than a minimum, and pronounced that this should be an evenly diffused lighting of from five to seven foot-candles on each desk, the light being given from large diffusing globes of an intrinsic brightness equal to three candles for each square inch of surface.

It is true that a child can do his work with less illumination, but only by exerting an improper effort.

To solve this problem it is necessary to study child psychology. Actual observation shows that the young young child has to make a considerable effort to recognize the objects that are shown to him. An adult, with his properly developed associations, can perceive the form of an object or the meaning of a word at a glance, but the child has to piece the details together or spell the word out.

Adequate illumination is therefore an absolute necessity, at any rate for primary education.

About a third of all school children in the first half of their school life fail to reach a normal standard of sight, and 10 per cent. leave the primary schools permanently short-sighted.

It is therefore necessary to make a considerable allowance for this normal vision.

The eyes, like any other organ, can work successfully at full load for a short time, but their normal working capacity is much lower.

The child should not be expected to work continuously at anything near the limits of its visual efficiency.

In most of our school houses, practically all of the newer ones, lighting is much better and much cheaper than it was. Direct daylight, not direct sunlight, is the best illuminant.

Where artificial light is necessary all lamps in schools should be either shaded or screened. It is not practicable entirely to conceal the source but hygienically there is very little preference between direct and semi-indirect lighting.

How to Improve the Shoulders

By MARIA JERITZA.

LOVELY arms and shoulders add greatly to a woman's charm. In Winter, when women like to appear at their very best at more formal entertainments than usually take place during the relaxed Summer season, gleaming white shoulders and slenderly rounded, symmetrical arms are essential to the success of sleeveless dinner, dancing and evening frocks.

Beautiful shoulders and arms should be shapely, white and of satiny skin texture. Develop your chest by deep breathing, if you would possess perfect shoulders.

The following exercise, if practised faithfully every morning should develop scrawny arms and shoulders and also reduce those that are too stout.

Stand erect, with your neck and back straight, your heels close together, your toes pointed straight forward. Clenching your fists, bring them to your shoulders in front of your armpits, keeping your elbows at your sides.

Next raise your arms straight over your head, parallel to each other. The third movement consists in straightening your fingers, turning the palms of your hands outward and, with arms straight, returning to first position. Repeat the exercise ten times or until you are fatigued. Make each movement decisive and "snappy."

Household Hints

Before cleaning copper kettles fill them with boiling water. They will be found to polish more quickly.

A little soda dissolved in the blue water when washing clothes will prevent any blue stain remaining on the garments.

Do not pour cold water into enamel vessels while they are still hot from cooking. This causes the enamel to crack and peel off.

Black cloth that shows signs of wear can be restored to almost its original freshness by scrubbing with a soft brush dipped in the water in which ivy leaves have been boiled until they are soft. An old saucepan should be used for this purpose, as the liquid stains, and this method is not to be recommended if there are any oats or scratches on the hands. After scrubbing, the material should be rubbed with a dark, dry cloth and hung out to dry.

The Love Wrecker by BEATRICE BURTON

Author of "Gilded Kisses"

Thrilling Romance of Youth in Boston

CHAPTER XLV.

EARLY the next morning Honey Lou carried the bolt of canary-colored silk back to the store, and rushed back home in a taxicab to get dressed for the drive.

At half past eleven Angela drove into the street.

Angela was beginning to be something of a mystery to Lou. Was she really a good friend of hers? Or was she as false as Margret said she was? Was Margret right or was she just jealous of Honey Lou's friendship for Angela?

"I wish I knew," thought Honey Lou, looking at the pure sweet face beside her.

"Aren't you going the wrong way?" she asked suddenly. For they seemed to be going toward Boston instead of out into the country.

"Well, I'll tell you." Angela began with a slow smile. "I knew you wouldn't come if I told you last night — but, Tim Donegal is going with us today."

As she spoke the roadster slowed down before the place where Donegal kept bachelor's hall.

Angela began to honk the automobile horn and Honey Lou got out of the car and stood on the ground beside it. She shook her head with its fly-away curls decidedly.

"I'm going home," she declared. "I just won't go anywhere with Tim Donegal. Jack'll leave me flatter than a flounder if I do. You don't know him, Angie, or you wouldn't ask me to go!"

But listen, Honey," Angela pleaded, taking her by the shoulders. "You've just got to come along—to chaperon me."

Honey Lou shook her head again.

"No, I won't go, Angela," she said firmly. "And that's that!" She turned to start away down the street.

"Wait a minute!" Angela called out sharply. "If you'll come I'll make it right with Jack. I'll go to him and tell him that I teased you to go."

But Honey Lou only shook her head again.

"No. I can spend the day learning a few things that I ought to know, anyway," she answered with her quick, bright smile. "Mary's going to teach me to cook — and today's a good day to begin."

Angela frowned. "Honey Lou Wallack, you know you don't want to learn to cook!" she cried. "You're just afraid of Jack. And if you knuckle down to him now you'll be a slave to him all your life. You won't be able to say your soul's your own, darling. I don't know you won't."

"Well, there was something in that, and Honey Lou stayed to listen.

"It's perfectly ridiculous for Jack to act about Donegal the way he does!" Angela's voice, a bit sharp with indignation, rose higher than usual. "Tim's family were one of the oldest and best families in town—and it's beastly for people to snub Tim just because they've lost everything they had. I like him and I'm going to stick to him, just because he is unfortunate!"

That was news to Honey Lou.

"I'm sure Jack isn't against him because he's down on his luck," she said, loyally defending Jack. "But he thinks Donegal wild—and he's jealous of him besides. He's silly enough to think that Donegal still has a crush on me."

"Well, he needn't think that," Angela said with an embarrassed little laugh. "If there's anyone down there it's—you! Now, that is a secret, Honey Lou. Remember!"

At that moment out stepped Donegal himself. He looked anything but "down on his luck."

"Honey Lou says she can't go after all," was the first thing that Angela said to him as he came jauntily toward them.

His face fell. "Now, really, Honey Lou. You're spoiling a perfectly good party by not going. Why don't you want to go?" pleaded Honey Lou blinked. How could she tell him that Jack wouldn't let her go anywhere with him? She couldn't even let him come to his house!

Then Angela just couldn't. As there not a reason in the great why she can't go," came Angela's voice. "Not any real reason, is there?"

Yes, wh car and don't crab the scenes, Donegal pleaded, and with be not one shrug Honey Lou got into fully, sayi

What's Become of the Awkward Age?

Drawn By Dorothy Flaci

WHERE, oh where, are the spindly - legged, bony-armed maidens of yesteryear, who hid their doubtful charms in gingham and low-heeled shoes? Where are the little girls who were just beginning to grow up, but just didn't seem to get there?

The answer is: "Gone forever."

In their place are svelte young things in chiffon and satin with stilted slippers and jewels in their ears. The awkward age is no more. Gone are the curls and hair ribbons, the cotton hose and middy-blouses. The cocoons have emerged fully-bloom butterflies, gay and colorful.

Nowadays the transition between childhood and adolescence is made gracefully and gradually. The little girl who blushed profusely at the mention of a boy's name, and who curtsied between sentences, has left no traces behind her. For the modern sister, of the same age, is sophisticated and all-knowing. She scares her brother, for has she not a permanent, if a bit unnatural, bloom that puts to shame the crimson flush of embarrassment?

But for all her artificial adornments it said she is still the delight of a worldly heart. Her youthful gest is not stated by knee-length skirts and unraveled pigtails, and her simplicity is only enhanced by smart clothes.

The awkward age is a thing of the past. Yet no one mourns it!

'Golden Roads' Serial

had met Peggy Baird on her own ground—engaged in the age-old battle of the triangle—was gloriously, with hardly an effort. She had disclosed the weakness of her rival—tested her own power.

She thought that, tingling with glee.

It never occurred to her that Miss Baird, reared to fanatical faith in her own high station, might worn to look upon her father's employe as a rival. Christine was too self-centered to consider other's view points.

Nor did she realize that her egotism was the thing that stood between herself and complete conquest of Penny—that she wasn't clever enough to give up some of her wishes in favor of his.

She sensed the fact that hers was the stronger personality of the two. Why, then, couldn't she mere by crash the gate—walk away with him, since he so evidently was crazy about her?

Because she couldn't see any fault in herself she blamed his standoffishness on Peggy Baird. She actually was in love with Penny—blindly, unreasonably in love.

"And all's fair in love and war," she would tell herself when her conscience bothered.

For her conscience had a way of nagging at times. When Peggy Baird would call up and ask for Penny and she would say he was out—seeing him across the room even, while she was speaking through a blur of jealousy.

Christine was truthful instinctively; falsehood always seemed weak tea to her. And for all her unconsciousness, the downright lawlessness that rushed through her at times, was not weak. The Nordblood had been mixed with a fairer purer strain.

"But I'm sure got to keep that Baird dame away from him" her thoughts would sure. "Ready to crush him any minute she is. Then what would I do? Couldn't stand it —that's all. I'll never care so much again!"

She believed that firmly.

Penny would be sure if he found out about the interrupted calls. But she could manage him. After all, he'd probably be flattered by her jealousy. He complained sometimes about her indifference—too much the male to see that it was only a mask.

She didn't reckon with Peggy Baird. That had been a mistake, as she saw one afternoon, when that supercilious young lady came into the office—flashed her a look of contempt—made straight for Penny.

She had called him three times that day—listened to Christine's, "Not in, now. Any message?"

Now they were talking earnestly Penny was protesting, pressing his hand over his crowded desk. Almost she could hear him saying, "But I've been right here. Look at the work I've done. Something strange—"

Miss Baird shrugged, glanced at the switchboard; Penny's eyes followed hers, startled.

He's given me away. Now what will happen? Well—I should worry, I should worry—" All in a fury Christine was thinking, ashamed and defiant.

She was not surprised when Peggy went into her father's office—her when Baird's voice, over the wire summoned her.

He too looked startled. "We can't have that, Miss Noe. You're here to give service. An incredible story of office—"

She stared past him, met his daughter's swelling gaze. "You want me to quit, Mr. Baird? I will. I'm through."

"No I was about to observe." He sighed with relief, waved her out of the room.

The Making of a Husband Serial

By Ann Lisle

THE hot dish caused a lot of mirth and merrymaking, for it was frankfurters and sauerkraut, served temptingly out of big deep-dish pies which were far too grand for the simple fare.

"Do you call them 'hot dogs' because their back is so much worse than our bite?" Judy asked as she peeled her little sausage carefully and held up the casing.

Ralph flung back his head and laughed with a boyishness and lack of restraint I've never before seen him display. Judy dimpled and chuckled as she said:

"That's a bully laugh, Mr. Lacy. It covers the well-bred stares of amazement I'm causing Betty and Mrs. Dalton by my snooting."

"I'm not well bred," Ralph said wiping his eyes and effacing the signs of mirth all out of proportion to Judy's feeble little joke. "I am a waif who once slept in packing boxes and whose job was selling papers long before I began selling advertising space in 'em, and now and then I laugh like the outsider I used to be."

"You're not defending yourself for having a sense of humor and a most infectious laugh, are you?" asked Jeanie, whose snobbery had never taken offence at Ralph's honest references to his humble beginnings.

But Judy was leaning across the table with her elbows stuck in the cloth and her eager young face cupped in her hands, which were pressing scarlet flaxs against her cheeks. And she asked almost breathlessly:

"Were you really a lonely little orphan boy and did you put your self through college and make your own wonderful career out of a hole cloth? I say that's ripping. We've spoiled a lot of caress over in my little island, but to make one alone —I say were you a lonely little tiker?"

"Frightfully," Ralph said gravely. "And hungry, too. So if I may I'll devour the bark from another of those little doxies and appease my bite some more—" Jeanie and Betty smiled, but Judith Winston was all concern as she asked just above a whisper:

"Did you have a frightfully hard time? Didn't anyone help you at all?"

"Everyone did!" Ralph grinned, sending me a glance which I couldn't read. "Folks bought my papers, poked didn't notice the impromptu bedrooms I used to rig up in packing boxes, the very lads whose shoes I polished to help me pay my college tuition, fairly kicked me into their fraternity and onto their football team. I had a gorgeous time of it, Miss Judith. Don't pity that youngster who is gone off the man these twenty years. Just recall him when I make a faux pas like laughing much to aloud or eating peas with my knife or tucking my napkin into my waistcoat—"

"As if you would!" Judy cried, at a wedding. Is this the custom in the church to which you belong? That may be.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Isn't it the groom's privilege to select his ushers, or must relatives' favorites or desires be accepted?

I—Does the same privilege apply to the bride in her selection of bridesmaids?

2—The groom is to be escorted by his best man from the vestry room to the foot of the steps leading to the altar, where he will await the approach of the bride, on the arm of her father. Together they will ascend the steps. The groom's mother insists upon escorting her son up the aisle passing the ushers and bridesmaids, with the best man at the groom's side. Is this correct?

A READER.

IT is the groom's privilege to select his ushers. The groom always has the privilege of selecting his best man (who is usually his brother, or if he hasn't a brother his cousin or his best friend). It is, however, customary for him to choose the brother of the bride—if she has one or the bride's cousin or some other representative of the bride's family But no one should presume to dictate to the groom whom he should have as his ushers; that is his privilege.

I—Yes, the same privilege applies to the bride in her selection of bridesmaids. That is, for her maid of honor or matron of honor she chooses usually her sister, married or unmarried. If she has no sister she chooses her best friend or her cousin. Her bridesmaids are her other close friends. Sometimes she, too, in compliment to the groom, invites a sister of the groom or a cousin to be one of her bridesmaids.

2—You are correct in the way you have planned to have the groom accompanied by his best man, go from the vestry room to the foot of the steps leading to the altar, where he will await the approach of the bride, on the arm of her father. Together they ascend the steps.

I do not know what to say about the plans of the groom's mother to accompany her son up the aisle passing the ushers and bridesmaids, with the best man on the groom's side." I have never seen this done at a wedding. Is this the custom in the church to which you belong? That may be.

MAN WANTS TO TELL HIS JOY TO THE WORLD
Sore on leg healed after years of suffering
San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 10:— "I just want to let you know what your Resinol has done for me. For many years I had a bad sore on my leg. I had tried a number of different treatments, including Electric Baths and different recommended salves. I suffered terribly at times as my work compelled me to be on my feet a great deal. Several weeks ago I saw Resinol advertised and in desperation I bought a small jar of this Ointment, not believing it would do me any good. However, after using it for one week I was surprised to see the ulcer was healing and by the time I had finished the second jar the healing was complete. I am glad to tell the world what Resinol Ointment has done for me and I will be glad to recommend it to any sufferer." (Signed) Max Endert, 63½ Jersey Street.

DAILY SHORT STORY

SATIETY

By Elizabeth Moore

"I CAN'T understand what ails my wife, Dr. Graham," said Mr. Stern. "She has everything money can buy. I've worked hard all my life and it seems too bad that now when I've arrived, Ellen should be so miserable."

"I confess I'm at a loss, too," replied the doctor. "My medicine does not seem to touch the spot at all. You say you've been a hard worker all your life, Mr. Stern? Not done much but sign checks since I've known you."

"You should have seen me when I was young, doctor. I sure was some hustler. When Ellen and I first married we lived in a little house that I bought on the installment plan. She did most of her own work to help along and was as happy as a bird. We had a garden, too. I raised vegetables and flowers and maybe you won't believe it, but I even made some of the furniture. Built a good deal of it right into the house. Of course it wasn't finished nice like this big mahogany table, but do you know she wanted to take it along when we moved to the city."

"Sold your handiwork with the house, eh!"

"Not exactly. Ellen took it so to heart that I just rented the house. Later, oh, years later, I let the old nurse who took care of the children live there for next to nothing. She's there now."

"Hm," observed Dr. Graham. "Well, try this new medicine. If th t doesn't help we'll have to think of something else."

After the doctor left, Mr. Stern went back to where his wife sat in the luxuriously furnished library.

"I wish I could do something for you, my dear," he said.

"I'm really ashamed of myself, Edgar," she replied. "I seem to be like the little boy who cried because he wanted to want something. I just can't think of a thing."

It was after Dr. Graham's next visit that he decided a change of scene was necessary for Mrs. Stern. Husband and wife were to make a [illegible] together. The patient acquiesced meekly and a few days later the big limousine rolled up to the door and Mrs. Stern was helped into it.

At the railroad station the chauffeur bought their tickets, helped them to their chairs and left them.

"Where are we going, Edgar?" Mrs. Stern inquired after a while. "You haven't told me yet."

"That's a secret, Ellen," Mr. Stern answered. "A deep, dark secret."

"Well, I don't care much anyhow," she admitted. "All these big hotels are alike. One's as good or as bad as another. But I don't understand all the mystery."

It was still daylight when the porter came through the train and gathered up their luggage. Mrs. Stern had been dozing in her chair but now she awoke with a start as the conductor called the station.

"Edgar, what does this mean," she demanded. "Where are you taking me?"

"I'm taking you home, dear," he told her.

As they stepped from the train, Mrs. Stern was suddenly enveloped in the arms of her daughter.

"Welcome home, mother," she cried.

"Why Clara! You here? And did you, too, say home?"

Clara's car took them rapidly through the village in the gathering dusk and deposited them at a quaint little cottage. Here a portly body bustled out and helped the amazed Mrs. Stern inside.

"Amanda! Why this is—why it's our old home."

"Sure, ma'am," answered the old nurse. "And you're bound to get well now with everything so peaceful and me here to take care of you. Supper is most ready, ma'am, but there's no butler but me, so I'll take you to your old room to lay off your wraps while I put the meal on the table."

The meal was simple but wholesome. The table [illegible] clean and white. In the ce[illegible] a bowl of lilies of the v[illegible]

"Lots and lots of the old things are there that have been blooming year after year since you planted them, ma'am. Some grown tall, some quite overgrown. Need weedin' and trimmin' up."

"It's like turning back time. I can hardly wait for morning to see what's left in my old garden."

"Recognize this old china closet," Ellen," asked Mr. Stern, "and those bookshelves?"

"Do I?" she answered as they [illegible] from the table. "Why, here's Joe's initials cut into the window sill, Edgar. I remember when he did that, and I thought him a naughty child!"

"So do I, the little scamp," chuckled Mr. Stern.

"Joe and I will both be here to see you next Sunday, Mother," said Clara. "And now I must fly away to my own deserted family."

Mr. Stern left in the morning.

"I'll be down for the week-end," he told his wife. "I do hope you'll feel better."

"I'm better now," Mrs. Stern said gaily. "And I'm going out [illegible] the lily bed just as soon [illegible] can find me a pair of [illegible]."

DON'T BE A "YES" MAN ALL YOUR LIFE

What sort of a person are you—one who can be shunted according to the dictates of your associates or one who has an open mind and can use it?

Do you want to be thought agreeable and for this reason hesitate to take a definite stand if it differs from your friends?

Or do you fear that you might be thought stubborn if you pursued a course in opposition to that recommended by friends?

It is fine to be tactful and bend to the wishes of your friends in the unimportant things, but it is not wise to be entirely swayed by those who express themselves to you.

For instance, if you have thoughtfully and with earnest desire for what is best, decided upon a certain goal, do your part to carry out your plans even if you do have opposition.

What is right for you may be wrong for the other fellow and what is right for him may not fit into your life at all.

So do not be downcast for you may have certain qualities that need different adjustmen[illegible] [illegible]hat of your companions and if life has given [illegible]rs aside except for the inevitable.

THE WISE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON---BY HELEN ROWLAND

LAUGH, O my Beloved, wink and be merry!

For behold, this is the Month of Laughter, when all the nation gledgeth itself to be jocund and mirthful!

Then forget not thy duty, when the Christmas bills fall upon thee as the gentle rain from heaven; but greet them with gurgles of delight and smiles of welcome—and toss them lightly into the waste-basket.

Yea, when the Boss cometh not across with the promised "raise," be not cast down, but chuckle gleefully, saying, "Oh VERY well! Now shall I be safe from temptation; for I shall have naught to squander upon folly!"

When the gas giveth out, when the tire goeth flat, when the motor-car breaketh down seven miles from the garage, oh be joyful and full of sprightly quips, nor let thy curses fall upon an innocent little engine. For walking is a glorious and healthful exercise!

When thy mother-in-law complaineth of her rheumatism, be not filled with sympathy, but clap her merrily upon the knee and soothe her pains with roars of laughter.

When thine husband cutteth himself with the rusty razor, when he steppeth upon the lurking tack in the dark, when he striketh his thumb with the hammer, encourage not his groans and swearings, but cover his confusion with ha-has and blithesome titters.

When the fat man bringeth his head down upon thy pet toe, let not a cry of pain escape thee, lest it dampen his spirits, but giggle airily and be jocose. Yea, verily, be blithe and jolly.

When the bandit holdeth thee up, be not afraid, but greet his gruff words with mocking laughter, and his evil designs with jaunty wit, saying, "Try and GET it!" Thus shalt thou cheer and confound him.

When the Little Woman greeteth thee with a kiss and sniffeth thy breath for "evidence," draw not away, but laugh lustily and defiantly in her face. Thus shall she be convinced.

When she asketh thine opinion of her new hat and how thou likest her party frock, be not hypocritical, but greet her queries with waggish repartee and gentle snickers.

Thus, my Beloved, shalt thou DIE of LAUGHTER—and that quickly!

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THERE have been so many payroll robberies lately, that several business firms have decided to pay their employes in counterfeit money.

IT'S silly to give them real dough anyway, they only spend it.

ONE company has cut down its payroll losses by reducing their employes' salaries.

NEXT month they're going to eliminate the risk entirely by getting their clerks to work for nothing.

WHERE there's no money there can be no burglary.

INSTEAD of cash they ought to fill the pay envelopes with meat and potatoes.

OF course this would cause a lot of jealousy. One stenographer would want to quit because the girl next to Her was earning two more lamb chops than she was.

WHEN a typist had been there a couple of years the boss could raise her to steak.

STILL, there wouldn't be much chance for advancement after she'd worked her way to filet mignon.

PAYROLL robberies are increasing all the time. A high-wayman hates to work for one salary when he can stick up the cashier and get everybody's.

THAT'S not the only advantage. He can keep all the money he wants, and his wife never knows how much he's hobbing out on her.

A BURGLAR who's married is no better off than any other man. He gets his dough taken away from him, too.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Getting On the Right Side of Winter evening fashions necessitates youthful dancers having an all-white frock, for the pristine whiteness of snow is one of the most important evening modes. D.A. SCHULTE ON PICKING MEN

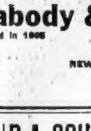
By B. C. FORBES
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—In 1924 this column said:

"Keep your eye on David A. Schulte, the tobacco chain store magnate. He has been coming to the front very impressively. It was he who last year acquired control of the old-established firm of Park & Tilford, doing a large wholesale cigar, perfume, grocery and importing and exporting business. It was Schulte who very recently bought the seventeen-story Aeolian Hall building in Fortysecond street, valued at some $6,000,000.



B. C. Forbes

Now comes the announcement that Schulte has obtained a controlling interest in the Vivaudou Company, famous manufacturers and distributors of perfumes. His further progress should be worth watching. All his ambitions have not yet been fulfilled. One big achievement acts as an incentive to tackle another."

SINCE THEN David A. Schulte has more than fulfilled the most optimistic expectations. He has made a few more millions in real estate—his profit on the Aeolian Hall building alone is reported as only a brief period, was reported as around a million. He has added to his lengthy chain of successful and lately-joined forces with the United Cigar Stores people. By and by Schulte may soon become known as entering head of both that vast enterprise and his own. He made a trip across the Atlantic and quickly acquired control of England's oldest and best known tobacco producing business, with a retailing business. One of his deals some time ago, through Percy Straus, was the purchase of $5,000,000 worth of whisky, to be sold for medicinal purposes. Altogether, his purchases was $6,000,000 worth of real estate in the busiest section of New York.

NOW COMES the news that he has acquired Hurley's "Hurler's" he says, "will be the capstone of my enterprises. You couldn't make a name like Hurley's in one man's lifetime." This latest purchase has cost Schulte several million dollars."

• • •

IN SHORT, David A. Schulte has figured more often in notable deals than any other man in the last few years. His wealth is estimated at a very large figure.

How has he done it? How does he do it?

SCHULTE himself modestly declares that he has done it through the wholehearted co-operation of others.

HOW DOES he handle other men?

"It's the mark of the good executive to have good assistants," he declares. "The executive must lead, but if he attempts to do everything himself he lessens his power of accomplishment.

"The man I select must be loyal, he must be a hard worker, and he must have common sense.

"I have no use for brilliant men who rely on their brilliancy rather than on hard work."

Redeem the Gold Brick

Congress Can Square Itself With the Veterans by Passing Senator David I. Walsh's Amendment

Congress carelessly put a gold brick in the bonus certificates given to war veterans two years ago.

Many of the veterans wanted a cash bonus to meet their immediate financial needs.

Instead they were given twenty-year insurance policies, the money payable to the veteran if alive in 1945, or to his dependents if he dies before then.

That did not meet his need for money in the meantime. So it was provided in the law that the ex-soldier could borrow on his certificate—just as on any insurance policy—any time after January 1, 1927. This year he can borrow eight per cent. of the face value of his certificate. Its loan value increases each year.

"He can borrow," but try to get it!

The Government, which issued the certificate, should be the party to make the loan, just as an insurance company makes the loans upon its own policies.

But Congress shoved on the banks the job of making the loans. It did not COMPEL the banks to make these loans; there is no way to do that. The law just says that the bank "may" loan on the certificates.

So banks that do not feel like lending are not doing it. A commercial bank does not want these small fifty and seventy-five dollar loans, hedged about with red tape in the returns that must be made by the banks to the Government.

Even well-disposed banks are very cautious about lending to veterans. The Veterans' Bureau at Washington, under the law, "may" reimburse the lending bank if the veteran fails to pay his loan. It does not say that the Bureau "shall" or "must" reimburse the bank.

The head of the Veterans' Bureau has given his personal word that he will take over all loans made in proper form, but this does not reassure some bankers.

As the result of all these conditions, the banks have refused more than half the loans sought by veterans throughout the country. The plain purpose and intent of the law is being thwarted. Needy veterans, promised relief on January 1, 1927, are complaining that they have got to die to get any relief before January 1, 1945, when the certificates mature.

Who is to blame?

Not the banks, but Congress, which tossed the buck to the banks. Without giving the banks the necessary protection, Congress tried to unload on them a job that did not belong to them. The ex-soldiers are the sufferers. Now some blatherskite Congressmen are trying to stir the veterans up against the banks.

Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts proposes an amendment to the Bonus act, ordering the Veterans' Bureau to make loans on the same basis as the banks may now make them.

Congress should pass the Walsh amendment, take back the gold brick and the buck and care for the veterans as it promised and pretended to do.

A Fairy Picture

There Is No Such Farmer, Alas!

IF THE FARMER SAT HERE, HE'D BE NOTICED

This picture, published by LABOR, of Washington, D. C., is supposed to show the proud American farmer, sitting on the steps of the Capitol at Washington in his BULK, his MIGHT and his MAJESTY, prepared to defend his rights.

Made by John Baer, once a Congressman from North Dakota, it is headed, "Right on the Job," and it expresses the RIGHT SPIRIT.

Unfortunately, the farmer is NOT showing that spirit, as he is supposed to do in this picture.

Conditions would be different and farmers more prosperous if all farmers were united for the common good, as railroads and the great corporations are united.

If the farmers joined as one man to work together, North and South, East and West, and went to Washington as railroad men and other big men do and DEMANDED WHAT THEY WANT, they would get it.

But unfortunately this isn't a REAL picture of what happens, it is just a fairy story of what OUGHT to happen.

Friends of the farmer—Senators Arthur Capper, of Kansas, and others of the Farm Bloc—do their best to unite the farmers, that the great power of their numbers may be used in legislation.

But there is no REAL union of farmers yet.

The cotton farmer down South has one idea. The sheep farmer in the W[illegible] another, and so with the wheat farmer, corn grower, e[illegible] live far apart, all know something is wrong, but the[illegible] get TOGETHER, using their united power to right

FREEDOM TO FIND FAULT PRECIOUS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THE thing that makes the world bearable is our freedom to find fault.

As long as we cannot remould the world nearer to our heart's desire, there is some consolation in telling it what is the matter with it.

What "freedom of speech" really means is "freedom to find fault." And for it men will gladly die.

There never has been much objection to anyone's speaking until he begins to find fault.

If a man were prevented from finding fault with his meals and his preacher, he would feel that his personality had been squeezed down to an infinitesimal part of the hole in the doughnut.

We don't mind if the politicians negate our vote, but when anyone tries to muzzle our innate right to tell people what's wrong, we rise up to do battle in the cause of freedom.

A motion picture producer in Los Angeles once told the writer of the joy with which people welcome the chance to find fault at "previews."

It is the custom among the studios to send out films to nearby towns for a showing before a final revision for distribution is made. Such showings are called "previews," and post cards are distributed to the audience for them to send in criticisms and suggestions for improving the picture.

Almost without exception they avail themselves of the opportunity to find fault.

One doesn't like the hero's haircut, another thinks the heroine looks too old for the part, another thinks a "close-up" should have been a "long shot," etc., etc., ad infinitum and to the joy of the postcarders.

All writers whose work appears regularly discover the enjoyment people get out of finding fault.

An error in grammar brings a flood of letters; a misquoted line a deluge.

In this latter there is another element. Finding a mistake where no mistake is supposed to be, adds a puzzle-solving thrill. It is like finding a face hidden among the leaves of a tree or in the lines of a cloud.

All in all, the chief back-slapper of the world's ego is the ability to find fault.

ADVICE

"Speeches should be like a woman's dress—long enough to be attractive and short enough to be interesting," says JOSEPH A. CAHALAN of CITY REGISTRAR McGLEVEN'S office force, an authority on elocution and prospective candidate for a high office in the MASSACHUSETTS CATHOLIC ORDER OF FORESTERS at the next convention.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THIS is a true story. It is not written for the people who live at the other end of the block or in the apartment above. It is written for YOU.

For eight months I have been involved in the affairs of two young people. The girl is twenty-two, the boy a year younger. They attend the same college. They are bright, well mannered, lovable youngsters. They come from representative American homes—cultured, comfortable homes of the highest standards. Their parents are leaders in the community life.

A year ago the boy and girl met at some college affair. They became infatuated with each other. This infatuation shortly began to interfere with their studies. Their parents interfered—but to no avail. Both of the mothers talked to me about it. They were frankly irritated by this interruption of well planned schedules but tried to laugh it off.

"What a nuisance puppy love is," they sighed. "But I suppose we'll have to stand it like all other parents. After all they're good children—not like these wild youngsters one hears about."

They thought no harm would come of it.

While they were thinking it the boy and girl began clandestine meetings. An intimate relationship developed. Their secret life became more and more intense. It worried both of them. They came to me and asked me what I thought of "free love." I pointed out the very obvious fact that their love was far from being free, that it was taking tremendous toll of both lives.

"Yes, of course, it's making things terribly hard for us," they agreed, "but we can't think it's wrong. It's sacred to us. It's just as if we were husband and wife—"

I pleaded with them and warned them. But I could not shake their determination.

The mothers came again—separately as before. What on earth could they do to break up this "silly affair." I could not betray the young people's confidence as my promise had been given, but I longed desperately to do something to save them. Very delicately, but gravely, I hinted to the mothers that affairs of this sort were often more serious than the parents thought. Young people didn't always tell their parents everything—

Insiantly each mother bristled. What did I mean? Was I insinuating that HER child didn't tell her everything? I was absolutely wrong! The most perfect confidence existed between her and her child. They weren't like other mothers and children. She knew everything—EVERYTHING—her child did. Her child might be foolish sometimes, but he wouldn't dream of doing a thing of which the mother really disapproved. Each mother made exactly the same speech with exactly the same attitude of outraged pride. It was plain that they considered me an evil minded meddler.

Pitiful Conclusion

The affair went on to its pitiful conclusion. Hysteria and peevishness succeeded ecstasy with the young people. They quarreled. The parents succeeded in separating them after eight months of secret intimacy, of which the parents still know nothing. But the girl is moody and bitter, and the boy is going through a "nervous collapse" which the doctors think "may be due to an abscessed tooth." They are both wrecks and the scars of that emotional wreckage will stay with them through life.

Yet if anyone should tell either of these mothers that tragedy had resulted because they failed to retain the confidence of their children, they would be justly indignant. As a matter of fact, they have never TRIED to gain that confidence. They were always sure they had it. In short, their complacent egotism did not permit them to think that their children could keep secrets from them or do things of which they disapproved.

Egotism like that raises a wall between parent and child as surely as selfishness or cruelty.

"But I trust my child," you cry.

Are you sure it's your child you trust? Or is it your own infallibility?

The Moons of Jupiter

By Garrett P. Serviss.

HOW far ahead the astronomer sometimes goes to obtain his facts concerning things relatively near at hand is illustrated by the work that Professor Joel Stebbins of the University of Wisconsin has lately been doing at the Lick Observatory.

He has been studying the light changes of Jupiter's moons in order to determine the variability of the sun's radiation with special relation to the effect of such variability upon the climates of the earth.

One might ask: "Why not study the sun itself to see how much its light and heat vary?"

The reply is: "That is done, and very carefully, too; but unfortunately the state of the earth's atmosphere is so variable that it masks the effects of changes of the solar radiation so that much difficulty and uncertainty are encountered in disentangling the real variations from apparent ones. Here Professor Stebbins' method comes in to avoid the difficulty.

Suppose you are watching a large conflagration from a nearby point; the total amount of light that it emits may vary quite largely without the variation being evident or measurable to you.

But if you go off to a great distance from which the light can be grasped by the eye as a whole, the fluctuations of total brightness are easily noted. Somewhat similar is the effect of viewing the reflection of the sun's variable radiation from a remote celestial body, whose angular diameter appears small.

Professor Stebbins employed a photo-electric cell to receive the light from the Jovian satellites, the brightness being measured with a delicate galvanometer. To determine the changes in brightness of a satellite comparison was made with selected small stars in the same field.

The light of the stars being original with them, while that of the satellite is reflected sunlight, which has not passed through the earth's atmosphere before being reflected from the satellite, any change in the latter's brightness arising from alteration of the sun's light would be detected by comparison with the stars, whose light is unaffecte' by the solar variation.

The main work of this research into the variability of the sun, and its consequences to the earth, is done at the various solar observatories maintained by the Smithsonian Institute, under the direction of Professor C. G. Abbot.

A new observatory of this series was established last Summer in South Africa and has already begun to function. In order to eliminate the effects of atmospheric variability days are selected for the measurements when the weather conditions are very nearly in accord with a chosen standard.

The great public hears little, and perhaps thinks less, of this devoted work of astronomers, done for the most part without ostentation, and in places remote from the walks of men, the aim and effect of which are to discover the relations of our little earth and its dependent existences to the great centre of energy by which it is controlled, and in a broader sense to unfold the laws connecting our solar system and the vast universe of similar systems, with the whole of which ours is fundamentally akin.
